After 50 years, he discovered why his mother never returned

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The last time Clifford Doze saw his mother, he was a three-year-old and she was walking out the front door, saying she was going to buy him an ice cream cone. That was 50 years ago.

"I can remember the door on Chester Street, and wanting to follow her so bad. I didn't want to be left there. I watched the door for the longest time," he recalled recently.

Doze was raised by his maternal grandmother and it was years before anyone told him that his mother was dead. And it was years after that before he suspected there was some foul secret about her death.

He learned the truth because of an accident of history and a recent evening newspaper.

Doze, an exterminator, was sitting in his Buffalo home May 21, relaxing with that day's edition of the Buffalo Evening News. Turning to the Magazine section, he saw a reproduction of the May 21, 1927, front page of the News. It was printed to honor the 50th anniversary of Charles Lindbergh's solo flight across the Atlantic.

"LINDBERGH IN FRANCE," read the banner headline. Below it on the left, in smaller type but clearly visible, was the headline, "Murdered Woman Is Mrs. C.G. Doze."

The newspaper account stated that a young woman, her hair "worn in a boyish bob," was found in a creek, strangled and beaten to death. Police believed her body had been thrown down the creek bank from a car.

The story said Grace Doze and her husband Chester had fought the Monday before her body was found. She had walked out on him.

The killing was never solved.

"The old man, he never said a word. Of course, he was pretty close-mouthed anyhow," Doze said recently.

Chester, who died several years ago, had been questioned in connection with the slaying, but no charges were filed.

Doze said he is glad to know the truth about his parents.

"I don't judge them. I feel they've both been judged."

Carter's new car rebate plan killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposed tax on gas-guzzling autos survived a series of tests in the House Ways and Means Committee today, but his planned rebates for motorists who buy fuel-efficient cars was easily rejected.

By a 23-13 vote, the committee refused to strike the gas-guzzler tax from the big energy tax bill the panel is writing. But Carter's own plan for a gas-guzzler tax lost 24 to 13 to a substitute offered by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.

The Rostenkowski proposal is a sharply watered-down version of Carter's. It delays the start of the tax until 1979 and even then would apply only to cars that get less than 15 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The Carter plan would have taken effect with 1978 models and applied to all those whose efficiency is less than 18 miles per gallon.

The proposal to pay purchasers of fuel-efficient cars a rebate of up to $500 was defeated 31-5.

Members of the committee viewed the rebate scheme as unworkable because a large portion of the money would be paid to buyers of foreign cars.

After knocking down the rebate, the committee began considering a new staff plan that would replace Carter's proposed tax on gas-guzzling cars. Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the committee, endorsed the staff's proposed compromise, but the Carter administration had no immediate response to it.

The compromise would delay the new tax until the start of the 1979 model year and even then the mileage standards required of new cars would be far below those proposedd by Carter.

For example, Carter suggested that 1978 cars be required to get at least 18 miles to the gallon or purchasers would face a tax on less efficient models. The compromise would postpone the standards for a full year.

But in 1979, instead of the 19-mile-per-gallon standard suggested by Carter, no car would face the new tax unless it got less than 15 miles per gallon. The tax then would be between $339 and $553.

In 1985, no tax would be imposed except on models getting less than 23.5 miles per gallon. Carter wanted the tax on all models with less than 27.5 miles per gallon. But instead of Carter's proposed $2,488 tax on the least efficient models, the compromise would impose a tax of $3,856.

No matter what happens to the gas-guzzler tax, auto manufacturers still would face several penalties unless mileage standards already written into law are met. That law requires efficiency of at least 18 miles per gallon in 1978, rising to at least 27.5 miles per gallon in 1985.

The committee finished its second day of work on Carter's energy-tax proposals Wednesday. One opponent, Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., said 20 of the 37 members of the panel were ready to vote against the so-called gas-guzzler tax.

Others in danger

Greek woman gives birth to octuplets; five expire

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A 25-year-old Greek woman gave birth to eight babies today, but five died soon afterward and the other three were in danger, her doctor said.

Dr. Panayiotis Malacos said the mother, Cleo Zerbili, was in good condition. Mrs. Zerbili gave birth to quadruplets two years ago.

The eight babies — five girls and three boys — were born two months prematurely. Two boys and a girl were still alive several hours after their births, the doctor said.

The Guinness Book of World Records reports five previous cases of octuplets in this century. In 1971 an Italian doctor claimed to have removed the fetuses of 10 girls and five boys from the womb of an Italian woman.

"I knew the mother was prone to multiple pregnancy and we were taking particular care of her," said Malacos. "But I still could not believe my eyes."

The four infants born to Mrs. Zerbili two years ago all died, he said.

Her husband is a bank clerk on the eastern Greek island of Mytilene, the doctor said.

Pomonan dies in cave-in

A Pomona man was buried alive in Riverside Wednesday when a 16-foot-deep trench in which he was testing soil caved in.

The Riverside County Coroner's office identified the victim as William T. Shields, 57, 1356 Glen Ave.

Authorities said the trench was in the back yard of a hillside residence at 2267 El Capitan.

Emergency crews were called in to remove the soil from the cave-in which occurred at 1:35 p.m.

However, they were too late. Shields was pronounced dead at the scene by the county coroner.

'Nixon false, foolish'

Castro gives Carter high marks in TV interview

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter is idealistic and intelligent. Richard Nixon is false and foolish. The Soviet Union is the freest country in the world. China is a good ally of the United States.

Cuban President Fidel Castro, holder of these opinions, is discussing subjects he hasn't mentioned publicly for years.

Despite his high opinion of Carter, Castro says differences between the United States and Cuba are so fundamental that he doubts the establishment of full diplomatic relations is likely during the remaining years of the President's current term.

While more optimistic about achievement of that goal if Carter is re-elected, Castro suggested that relations between the two countries have reached a plateau with the recent agreement on an exchange of diplomats at the sub-ambassadorial level.

Castro, Cuba's leader since he seized power on New Year's Day in 1959, offered his opinions to ABC news correspondent Barbara Walters in a wide-ranging interview. The interview, taped three weeks ago, was scheduled to be broadcast tonight.

Castro, recalling his first meeting with Nixon 18 years ago, said, "I could see he was a false man and politically speaking, foolish."

With Nixon in the White House, good relations with the United States were "absolutely impossible. Nixon always hated our country enormously and he was not only responsible for the Bay of Pigs but he was also closely related to counter-revolutionary elements and to rich families of Cuban origin," Castro said.

Losing patience

Dutch warn terrorists

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Two South Moluccan mediators boarded a hijacked train in the northern Dutch countryside today to relay a blunt warning from the government to South Moluccan terrorists: free their 55 hostages or face dangerous consequences.

Mediators Josina Soumokil and Dr. Hassan Tan were met by two young gunmen waiting for them 200 yards from the train, which is halted in a meadow 12 miles north of this city.

Another terrorist was concealed in bushes 60 yards from the train and a fourth was waiting at the foot of retractable steps at the entrance to one of the bright yellow cars.

Before boarding, the mediators — elders of the 40,000-member South Moluccan community in the Netherlands — talked for almost an hour with government officials, including Dutch Atty. Gen. Baron Wilhelm van der Feltz, at the crisis center here.

A government spokesman said it was "out of the question" that the twin sieges, which began 17 days ago, will be allowed to continue much longer.

Officials are becoming increasingly worried about the condition of the hostages, especially the 51 persons held aboard the train.

Cardiologist Jakob Nieveen said they may develop heart problems because of the stress, the lack of exercise and the uncomfortable conditions. More than half of them are over age 40.

Nieveen commented after examining Theo J. van Hattem, 46, who was freed from the train Wednesday after becoming ill. He was being treated at a hospital for what doctors described as incipient heart failure brought on by extreme stress.

Toos Faber, a Justice Ministry spokeswoman, said van Hattem's condition "has somewhat improved," and he may soon be discharged.

Premier Joop den Uyl and his cabinet were hoping mediators Josina Soumokil and Hassan Tan could convince the terrorists their position is hopeless, both "for their demands and for the political aims they have in view," a Justice Ministry spokesman said.

The mediators, elders in the 40,000-member South Moluccan community in The Netherlands, talked for nearly six hours with the gunmen aboard the train Saturday but failed to make any progress.

Eight to ten terrorists are believed to be on the train and four others are holding four teachers at the elementary school in nearby Bovensmilde.

Town uptight as murder suspect flees courthouse

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — The day after accused murderer Theodore Bundy leaped from a courtroom window and loped into the aspen-covered hills east of this Rocky Mountain town, a local merchant was selling Theodore Bundy T-shirts.

But the community's mood is not so frivolous. Doors are locked, the sale of handguns and ammunition is banned and parents pick up their children at school.

Animosity seems directed against the sheriff's department, not Bundy, a convicted kidnaper and accused murderer. Left unguarded, he jumped from a second-floor window of the Pitken County Courthouse on Tuesday, reportedly ran a half-mile along Main Street and is believed to have fled into the woods.

"This man is dangerous enough for the police department to warn citizens to stay inside and lock their doors, but he wasn't dangerous enough for them to watch him while he was in the courtroom," said Deborah Pellow, an anthropologist who teaches at Colorado Mountain College.

Bundy, 30, had been taken to the courthouse for a pretrial hearing concerning a 1975 murder indictment in the slaying of a nurse. He was returned to Colorado from Utah, where he was serving a sentence of 1-15 years for a 1974 kidnaping.

L.A. school attorneys charge Pomona's Judge Egly is biased

Ask for mistrial in busing litigation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The school board has asked that a mistrial be declared in Superior Court hearings on its integration proposal, accusing the judge of "misconduct, bias and prejudice."

The motion for mistrial was presented by G. William Shea, the board's chief counsel, as the school board completed defense of its controversial desegregation plan Wednesday.

Shea charged in his motion that Superior Court Judge Paul Egly had improperly sought advice from an outside expert and that his frequent comments critical of the board's mild proposal for desegregating the 600-square-mile district indicated bias and prejudice.

"I've never been accused of misconduct," said Egly, visibly angry. He said the motion was based on the "most flimsy evidence" he had ever seen.

However, the judge said he would take the matter under consideration. He did not indicate when a ruling could be expected.

Shea said the "principal reason" for seeking a mistrial was because of conversations that Egly allegedly had with Dr. Jane Mercer, a sociologist at the University of California at Riverside.

The conversations allegedly concerned Dr. Mercer's views on the academic achevement of minority pupils under Riverside's integration system and conflicted with testimony given by two witnesses presented by the board of education. The board of education witnesses claimed that the Riverside integration system had failed to achieve its goals.

Egly said no such conversation took place.

Other criticisms of the judge's actions cited by Shea were:

—That Egly early in the hearings had suggested that the board's integration plan did not meet the criteria prescribed by the 14th Amendment.

—That Egly had refused to allow school board President Dr. Julian Nava to complete testimony May 27 on the board's attempt to gather community opinion on the integration plan. Egly ruled that the testimony was irrelevant, since the court was interested only in the plan's constitutionality, not its popularity.

—That Egly openly rebuked the school board's associate superintendent, Jerry Halverson, for releasing to the news media the findings of a recent public opinion survey on the integration plan before the court had an opportunity to rule on whether it would be admitted as evidence. The judge later decided the survey would not be admitted.

Chowchilla kidnap case—1st Amendment wins

Rule hearings open to public, press

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The State Court of Appeal has ruled against excluding the press or the public from hearings for three men accused in the Chowchilla school bus kidnaping and turned down a request to move the trial from Alameda County.

Frederick Newhall Woods, 24, James L. Schoenfeld, 24, and Richard A. Schoenfeld, 22, claimed open hearings would deprive them of fair trials.

But the appellate court said Wednesday evidence was inadequate "to overrule the heavy presumption against the constitutional validity of such a prior restraint on the excercise of First Amendment rights."

The order does not affect any trial court ruling sealing or refusing to seal any documents related to the case. Superior Court Judge Leo Deegan had sealed documents on the motion sent to the Court of Appeal.

Woods' motion for a change of venue was not supported by the showing of a "reasonable likelihood" he could not get a fair trial in Alameda County, the court said.

The three men were indicted in Madera County on five counts each of kidnaping for ransom with bodily harm, 22 counts of kidnaping for ransom without bodily harm and 18 counts of robbery. Their trial later was moved to Alameda County.

Van de Kamp to FBI?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — District Atty. John Van de Kamp is one of five persons who will be recommended to President Carter as the next FBI director, the Los Angeles Times said today.

Van de Kamp was one of 50 people interviewed by a presidential committee since Feb. 22, according to unnamed committee sources quoted by the Times. The committee will submit its recommendations to President Carter this week.

Also on the list is William Lucas, a black former FBI agent, now sheriff of Wayne County, Mich., the newspaper said.

In October 1975, the board of supervisors appointed Van de Kamp, 41, to replace the late Joseph Busch, who died in office. He was elected last year to a four-year term.

Van de Kamp previously was a U.S. attorney and director of the executive office for the U.S. attorney in Washington, D.C.

Florida fallout

Governor hopeful Briggs to push anti-homo bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A California legislator who says he prayed with Anita Bryant and campaigned with her in Florida is introducing a bill to legalize discrimination against gay teachers.

State Sen. John Briggs of Fullerton, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor next year, said Wednesday he is assured Miss Bryant will campaign for his legislation if her help is needed.

Briggs also warned fellow legislators that he will force the Senate into a floor debate next week on a resolution commending the singer for her campaign against a homosexual rights ordinance in Florida's Dade County.

Briggs said the bill he is introducing would give California school districts "the right to discriminate against homosexual teachers. The school board would have the right not to hire them, and would have the right to fire them."

"I'm going to push my right-to-discriminate bill, and we're going to make sure the normal majority gets its voice heard here in California," Briggs said.

"If I can't get that bill out of this house, then I intend to run it as an initiative.

"I told Anita about that, and I told her I don't know what the outcome is going to be," Briggs said. "I feel confident I can call on Anita Bryant and Bob Green, her husband, to come to California and give me a hand on it if I feel I need it."

After her group won a 2-1 majority Tuesday to repeal the Dade County homosexual rights ordinance, Miss Bryant said she would continue her campaign against gays nationwide, and specified California as a spot of special concern.

She said San Francisco is "a cesspool" of homosexual activity, and added that nearly half the funds for her campaign came from California.

But she did not specify what she and her church-oriented followers planned in California.

Briggs said he did not meet her until last Sunday in Miami, when "my wife and I went to her church, and we sat beside her, and shared the Bible and we prayed."

He said he will try first to pass the right-to-discriminate bill in the legislature, but if it is blocked, he will seek support of Miss Bryant for a voters' initiative.

"She's in a position where she's awakened America. She really views homosexuals as a dangerous threat to children, to our religious way of life, maybe to the very survival of America," Briggs said.

"This (California) happens to be the fountainhead of all homosexual activites in the entire United States of America," Briggs added.

Shredding case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Misdemeanor charges against 23 persons have been dismissed because law enforcement officials shredded files pertinent to the cases.

The shredding incident, the judge said, is a "tarnishment of our system of criminal justice."

Booze, not heart, killed Busch?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A county physician has testified that former Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch died of acute alcohol poisoning, and not of a heart ailment as reported at the time of his death.

Dr. Charles Moss, chief of the medical advisory unit of the county Retirement Board, gave his opinion in a hearing Wednesday on Busch's widow's claim for service-related death benefits.

Moss' conclusions contrasted those of county coroner Thomas Noguchi, whose June 27, 1975 autopsy showed coronary disease as the cause of death.

Moss quoted the toxicologist's study included in the autopsy report, showing a .36 per cent alcohol count in Busch's blood at the time of the autopy.

Doctors testified that Busch's alcohol count could indicate the presence of the equivalent of 20 to 24 one-ounce drinks of 100-proof whiskey.

If Mrs. Busch wins the case, she will receive $24,000 annually for life. If she fails, the benefit will be less than $9,000 per year.

Southland storms taper off

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California sun-lovers take heart: the end to the drizzly weather is in sight.

The mountain and desert areas especially should appreciate the sunshine, after bouts with violent thunderstorms Wednesday. A flash flood warning was issued for the San Jacinto Mountains, and other mountain and desert locations were on watch for flash flooding.

A number of power outages were reported in the Tehachapi Mountains. A small brushfire broke out two miles west of the town of Tehachapi, but was controlled quickly.

The National Weather Service says sunny weather will poke through the clouds Friday afternoon, but only after a morning of clouds and drizzle.

In Los Angeles, Friday's high should reach the mid 70s, with overnight lows in the low 60s.

The San Fernando, San Gabriel and San Bernardino Valleys should have much the same weather, but with higher temperatures. Highs are expected to range from 77 to 85.

Temperatures in the coastal areas will be about ten degrees lower. The forecast highs are 68 to 75, with lows of 57 to 63.

GOP calls for influence peddling probe

Ask appointment of special prosecutor in S. Korea scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican congressional leaders today urged President Carter to appoint a special prosecutor to conduct a Watergate-style investigation of alleged influence-buying in the capital by South Korean agents.

Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker told a news conference, "I call on the President of the United States to appoint a special prosecutor to undertake a thorough, impartial investigation of the involvement of the KCIA (Korean Central Intelligence Agency)."

A member of the special Senate committee which investigated Watergate, Baker added that "simple fairness says the Democrats ought to be as willing to investigate this situation fully and fairly as the Republicans were willing to investigate Watergate fully and fairly."

Baker said he has not discussed his proposal with President Carter. Also participating in the news conference and concurring with Baker was House Minority Leader John Rhodes.

Baker and Rhodes issued their call for a special prosecutor the day after the House Ethics Committee authorized issuance of subpoenas to require former high-level intelligence and security officials of the Nixon and Ford administrations to testify as to their knowledge of South Korean efforts to buy influence in Congress.

The subpoenas were authorized Wednesday for Lawrence S. Eagleburger, formerly a top aide to Henry A. Kissinger and now ambassador to Yugoslavia; William G. Hyland, former head of the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence; Juanita Moody, a former National Security Agency intelligence officer, and Brent Scowcroft, a former national security adviser to Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford.

The committee also voted to ask every member of the House to disclose any associations they had with the South Koreans.

Rhodes said his endorsement of the appointment of a special prosecutor should not be taken as an indication he was disatisfied with the progress of the investigation under way in the House.

Both Baker and Rhodes said they did not believe there need be any conflict between the work of a special prosecutor and the congressional probes.

Baker said he believes both the President and the U.S. Central Intelligence Ageny have an obligation to give investigators whatever information they have about the activities of the Koreans.

The senator, who was the senior Republican on the Senate Watergate committee, was asked if he were calling the Korean matter a Democratic Watergate and if he thought there has been a cover-up.

"I'm not saying it's a Democratic cover-up ... I do not say the KCIA is going to be the Democrats' Watergate," he said.

He said that persistent leaks about the Korean probe were a factor that prompted him to call for appointment of a special prosecutor.

ADDRESSES RALLY

Thousands of gays protest

By The Associated Press

Anita Bryant, the singing orange juice saleswoman, has become the lightning rod for continuing reaction — both pro and con — to the successful campaign she led to repeal the Miami area's gay rights law.

Homosexuals demonstrated against her appearance Wednesday in Norfolk, Va., while supporters invited her to bring her campaign to San Antonio, Tex., and a California lawmaker promised a legislative resolution congratulating her.

More than 3,000 gay rights advocates protesting the Miami repeal marched for three hours in New York, and orange juice was yanked from the menu of one of the largest motels in Provincetown, Mass., a center of Cape Cod's summer homosexual community.

Wednesday's activities followed by one day the referendum repeal of a Dade County ordinance banning job and housing discrimination against homosexuals. The Bryant-led campaign claimed that children would be in danger if schools were forced to hire homosexuals.

About 350 homosexuals and other advocates of gay rights in Norfolk, Va., marched and chanted outside an auditorium where Miss Bryant was appearing at a religious crusade. About 125 entered for the service but left after she read a Bible verse that names homosexuals among groups that will not "inherit the kingdom of heaven."

"I saw the long lines of them outside when we came," she said at a news conference later. She added tearfully, "It breaks my heart that after I said the word homosexual, they didn't hear the rest."

The rest of the passage said, "But ye are washed, ye are sanctified, ye are justified by the blood of Jesus Christ."

Steve Stone, a member of the Tidewater American Civil Lioerties Union and a coordinator of the protest dubbed "Save Our Country from Anita Bryant," said the protest showed that "gay people are not afraid" and had been strengthened by her opposition.

Miss Bryant's televised ads for Florida citrus products led to the removal of orange juice from the menu of the Crown and Anchor Motel. Motel officials also poured a quart of juice into the street and gave the rest of its supply to a nursing home.

"The issue here is not whether a homosexual can molest a child," Crown and Anchor owner Stanley Sorrentino said. "It's whether a qualified brain surgeon or a truck driver or a school teacher, who happens to be gay, should be deprived of a job."

Miss Bryant said she was preparing a booklet for people interested in fighting gay rights legislation in other cities. But she said she would not interfere "unless individuals in the community are concerned enough to solicit our advice."

Such an invitation came Wednesday from a Baptist preacher in San Antonio, Tex., who said he is fighting more than just gay rights. "It's a battle of morality vs. immorality," the Rev. Joe West said.

San Antonio's homosexual community held a rally and raised $2,000 for the Dade County gay movement. A counter-rally at the Alamo attracted persons opposed to the Dade County gay rights ordinance.

In New York, for the second night in a row, a demonstration by gay rights activists ended after former Rep. Bella Abzug urged them to begin a public education campaign to win their rights.

She told them "Everyone has a right to a job. Everyone has a right to housing. Everyone has a right to public accommodations and the right to practice sex in private as she or he sees fit."

She spoke after more than 3,000 persons had marched from Greenwich Village through midtown Manhattan to Columbus Circle at the foot of Central Park. On Tuesday night, several hundred persons marched through Greenwich Village to Mrs. Abzug's apartment. The former congresswoman, now a candidate for the Democratic mayoral nomination, spoke briefly then to the demonstrators.

Four hurt in Pomona traffic

Four persons, one a 5-year-old boy, were injured in Pomona traffic accidents Wedneday, police reported.

The 5-year-old, Timothy B. Jones, of Pomona, suffered facial injuries and possible internal injuries when he was hit by an auto. The youngster was reported in fair condition today at Doctors Hospital in Montclair.

The accident occurred shortly after 6:30 p.m. Police said Timothy ran into Columbia Avenue east of San Antonio Avenue and was struck by a car driven by Victor E. Hamilton, 58, of Pomona. Officers reported that the boy ran into the street from behind a parked car.

A 15-year-old boy was hurt when the car he was in was involved in a collision at Phillips Boulevard east of Towne Avenue shortly before 11 a.m. The passenger, Steve Dorough, of Pomona, was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. He was riding in an auto driven by Raymond B. Torrell, 16, of Pomona.

Neither Torrell nor the other driver involved, Janet L. Townley, 22, of Upland, was injured.

Loraine A. Thomas, 41, of Pomona, was injured slightly when the car she was driving left the road, hit a low brick wall and knocked down a tree in the 900 block of Ashfield Avenue Wednesday morning, police said. She was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

And shortly after midnight, Robert Lopez, 39, of Pomona, cut his chin and injured his knees when his car ran into a parked car near Westmont Avenue and Buffington Road. He also was released after treatment at the hospital.

2 men, woman sought in holdup

Ontario police are seeking two men and a woman who reportedly attacked and robbed a 55-year-old Ontario man in the northeast parking lot area of Ontario International Airport Wednesday night.

He said one of the men, named Victor, and the other, who had crutches, forced him to hand over his wallet.

2 more jailed in company picnic fracas

Pomona police have arrested two more suspects in the fracas Sunday which occurred during a toy company picnic attended by 2,000 persons at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

During the incident, two members of a La Puente family, a father and his 19-year-old son, were beaten and required hospital treatment.

The latest suspects were arrested Wednesday. One, 16 years old, was taken into custody at Valley High School in Industry and the other, also 16, was arrested at Workman High School in La Puente. Both were booked on charges of assault likely to do great bodily injury, a felony.

Tuesday, a 24-year-old La Puente man was charged in Pomona Municipal Court with the same offense in connection with the incident. He was arrested during the fracas Sunday.

Petitions charging the teen-agers with felonious assault will be filed with juvenile authorities. Meanwhile, the teen-agers were released to the custody of their parents.

Senate grants car maker delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted today to give American Motors a special delay in meeting clean air rules and appeared headed toward approving a compromise extension for the rest of the industry.

The compromise would likely delay a scheduled tightening of auto-exhaust standards from 1978 to 1980 models.

2 shot in row over money

An apparent landlord-tenant dispute in Ontario Wednesday night ended with two men being shot and another slightly injured.

The incident occurred at 415 W. Belmont St.

Wounded were Martin Lee Haggin, 21, of 417 W. Belmont St., an apartment manager, and Brian David Kovalski, 20, of Upland. Slightly injured was Nowlin Eugene Campbell, 27, of 415 W. Belmont St.

Haggin and Kovalski were treated for shotgun pellet wounds at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland and later released.

Campbell, who suffered head and facial injuries, was booked in the sheriff's jail for investigation of attempted murder.

Police said that the suspect apparently had been in a continuing argument with Haggin several hours prior to the shooting.

Haggin said that he and his friend, Kovalski, left the four-unit complex about 6 p.m. to go to a nearby market.

They were confronted at the market by a man and an argument ensured. He claimed the apartment manager owed him some money for maintenance work.

Police said the apartment manager apparently fought with Campbell for a short time and Campbell left.

On returning to the apartments, Haggin said he and his friend saw Campbell standing outside with a shotgun. The two victims said they pushed a woman into an apartment just as the suspect fired the shotgun.

Haggin was struck once in the legs and once in the back. Kovalski apparently grabbed an unloaded .22-caliber pistol and ran to his pickup truck to get some ammunition.

Kovalski told officers that he was hit by the shotgun pellets near the truck, but he managed to load and fire three shots from the pistol in the air.

Campbell then reportedly fled into his apartment, said police.

Police arrived moments later and surrounded the apartment Campbell was believed to be occupying.

Campbell was ordered outside and he surrendered. Police said they found two shotguns in the attic portion of Campbell's apartment.

Police are attempting to sort out the different information given by witnesses in the case.

Not enough water in state by year 2000?

ANAHEIM (AP) — California will not have enough water to meet its needs in the year 2000 despite the scheduled completion of the State Water Project, a federal water official warns.

Billy E. Martin, regional director of the Bureau of Reclamation, predicted Wednesday the state's proposed $3.5-billion construction program would only provide 3.5 million of the 6.2 million acre feet of water the state will need by the turn of the century.

The state has been hit by a drought the past two years, with water rationing now in effect in many Northern California communities where the problem is particularly critical.

Martin, speaking at the spring conference of the Association of California Water Agencies, said Congress should examine the proposed project to make sure major state interests agree to support it.

Congressional approval is required for the state to receive federal funding.

Ron Robie, state Water Resources department director, agreed with Martin that completion of the CWP would still leave the state short of water.

Meanwhile, a Metropolitan Water District spokesman in Los Angeles said Wednesday that Southern Californians are still using too much water.

John H. Lauten, the district's general manager, said only about five per cent reduction in usage was reported in May compared to the same month a year ago.

The district has been trying to reduce consumption by 10 per cent.

7 freed of charges they fired on cops

Seven persons arrested last week after several shots were reportedly fired at police officers on Yorba Avenue in Chino have been exonerated of all charges.

Arrested May 31 were Johnny Gonzales Esparzia, 19, of Chino; Angel Murillo Gonzales, 20, of Chino; Michael O'Keith Marich, 22, of Los Serranos; Steven Michael Rodriquez, 19, of Chino; Theresa Nancy Alcarez, 23, of Chino; and two Chino juveniles.

Lack of sufficient evidence was cited by authorities as the reason for all charges being dismissed.

Change in law urged

20 states may lose millions in Medicaid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty states may lose millions of dollars in Medicaid payments because they did not properly review nursing homes that serve Medicaid clients, says HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.

But he says the law that is forcing him to withhold the money should be changed.

The 20 states and others may be forced to pay back $377 million they received in Medicaid money in 1975, the secretary of health, education and welfare said Wednesday.

HEW is obligated to reduce the amount of federal matching funds for Medicaid in states which fail to make an annual review of each nursing home that accepts Medicaid patients.

Califano said he will comply with the law and withhold the money, but added he will ask Congress to change the law to set new guidelines and to permit the states to receive the money being withheld.

"The law must be enforced, but it urgently needs to be changed to be reasonable, equitable and effective," Califano said.

New York stands to lose the most, $53.8 million out of the $142 million being withheld from the 20 states as of July 1.

The other states and the amount of the reductions are: Alabama $274,083; Indiana $1,214,955; Kansas $1,898,586; Montana $737,379; Nebraska $1,386,147; Tennessee $4,355,809; California $15,359,223; Colorado $2,295,397; Iowa $3,124,071; Maryland $2,236,487; Massachusetts $9,794,808; Michigan $9,196,973;

Also, Missouri $1,473,751; New Jersey $4,684,016; North Carolina $2,687,131; North Dakota $503,327; Ohio $6,943,149; Pennsylvania $13,593,459, and Wisconsin $6,616,883.

Although three other states, Delaware, Nevada and Louisiana, already have been penalized for failing to meet review requirements, HEW did not reduce their Medicaid payments because they have asked for reconsideration of their cases.

Califano said he would ask Congress to simplify the administration of the program and reduce the penalties, while maintaining the requirement for quality and efficiency reviews.

Those 27 states are: California $44,993,000; Colorado $3,320,000; Iowa $45,000; Maryland $3,136,000; Massachusetts $19,540,000; Michigan $23,749,000; Missouri $1,539,000; New Jersey $4,981,000; New York $142,252,000; North Carolina $3,954,000; North Dakota $1,753,000; Ohio $9,442,000; Pennsylvania $45,751,000; Wisconsin $13,600,000; Connecticut $11,318,000; Florida $10,836,000; Kentucky $3,897,000; Hawaii $1,218,000; Illinois $5,780,000; Minnesota, $7,561,000; Mississippi $5,577,000; New Hampshire $259,000; Texas $4,137,000; Virginia $679,000; Washington $7,771,000; Oregon $165,000; Vermont $354,000.

Geneva wartime rules revised

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A revised version of the Geneva convention promises guerrillas and civilians greater protection in wartime but offers little security to rebels fighting in civil wars.

The revised pact, adopted Wednesday after four years of negotiations, bans the destruction of nuclear power plants, dams, dikes, food supplies and water installations "indispensable to the survival" of civilians.

It also bars signatories from "indiscriminate attacks" on civilian populations, and gives guerrillas fighting against "colonial or racist regimes" the same rights as regular soldiers.

At the insistence of Third World delegates, however, it urges only that rebels captured during a "civil war" receive "humane treatment." The convention deliberately avoided saying who should classify an insurrection.

Red Cross-backed proposals to bar the execution of convicted insurgents before the end of fighting were defeated, as were proposals to allow impartial inspection of prison camps.

Some 109 countries participated in drawing up the pact, designed to replace the existing convention covering treatment of civilians and prisoners in wartime that was signed in 1949.

Israel protested the clause giving guerrillas the same status as regular soldiers. The issue proved one of the most difficult to overcome.

What's going on around here

Memorial night

"Memorial Night" will be observed by Pomona Chapter 110, Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Masonic Temple, 395 S. Thomas St.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kopke will greet members and visitors.

A tribute to the U.S. flag will be given during the evening.

Paramedic services

Continuation of joint paramedic services between Orange and San Bernardino counties has been approved by the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors.

The agreement, also approved by the Orange County board, allows paramedics certified in one county to render service while transporting a patient to or through the other county.

"The continuation of this service and, in fact, our entire paramedic program, is of great importance to all residents of San Bernardino County," said Board Chairman Robert O. Townsend.

A survey of ambulance services indicates an average of 10 patients per month are transported to or through Orange County, while there is only an occasional patient transported to or through San Bernardino County.

Health plan

A 1977-78 plan for a child health and disability prevention program was approved by the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors.

The program provides periodic health screenings for all children, ages 6 to 20, eligible under Medi-Cal.

Since the program started in April, 1975, more than 20,000 children have received screenings in San Bernardino County. During the current fiscal year, 18 per cent of all children screened through the program have been referred for further diagnosis and treatment.

Gun show

Don Bullock's California Gun and Collector's Show will be at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona Saturday and Sunday and June 25-26.

On exhibit will be the Tipup Pistol, a single shot calibre 22, with a 10-inch barrel and a skeleton stock made of what looks like light brass bands, detachable, of course.

The weapons were in vogue circa 1879 through 1886, and were first used for gallery and target shooting and later for hunting small game. They were manufactured by Joshua Stevens at his Chicopee Falls, Mass., factory and were so popular for a time they were distributed all over the U.S. and exported to Europe.

Today only a handful of these unusual guns survive, a few being owned by collectors Alex Moeller and Jerry Walters, who will be showing them at the Pomona show.

Many other such items will be seen at both of the California Gun and Collector's Shows, which will be held in Building 3-A at the fairgrounds.

Parking is free. Admission is $1.75 for adults and 75 cents for children. Hours of the shows are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

INSTALLED — D. Kenneth Baker holds the Harvey Mudd College mace, symbol of authority as chief executive officer. Baker was installed as the second president of the college in commencement ceremonies on the Claremont campus. He was presented the mace, on behalf of the board of trustees, by Joseph B. Platt, right, first president of the college.

New offer to county 'sickouts'

Attempting to discourage "sickouts" and avert a strike, Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors has placed a new offer on the bargaining table.

Its current contract with some 80,000 county employes expires June 30.

A 2½-week-old sickout by some 3,392 employes slacked off Tuesday with only 279 staying off the job, officials said.

The new offer was prompted Tuesday morning during board meeting when Supervisor Kenneth Hahn persuaded his colleagues to call an executive session for 1:45 p.m. to "put together an official statement, giving the county's side in this thing."

Hahn charged the public was hearing only the "union's side" and not the county's side in the dispute.

"We should tell the public that we have a fair offer. Not what everybody wants, but a fair offer," said Hahn.

However, following the 3½-hour executive session, during which supervisors met with labor leaders, the county offer was not disclosed.

Chairman Edmund "Ed" Edelman said it would not be made public until it had been presented to union memberships.

The sickouts which began May 20, were called by employes to protest what they said were stalled contract negotiations.

Health offices bore the brunt of the action with 1,521 employes countywide calling in sick. Workers in the county's Public Social Services Department stayed home in fairly large numbers, as did employes in the Probation Department.

In other county departments these were much lower in number.

Officials said Tuesday that 2,537 of those who participated and disrupted services would be docked for their actions.

At Tuesday's board meeting, Supervisor Pete Schabarum charged "union leadership" for the "sick-outs."

"The facts are," said Schabarum, "union leadership is not about to tell our employes what our offer is."

Chaffey district '77-78 budget up

A preliminary budget estimating a $2 million increase over last year's spending was presented to the Chaffey Joint Union High School District's board of trustees this week.

Supt. Mike Dirksen, who cautioned the budget is "very preliminary" at this time, estimated expenditures at $24 million for 1977-78, up $2 million over last year.

He said the increase is due to a "combination of things," including inflation, higher staff salaries, more employes, and partial restoration of the six-period day.

Dirksen would not estimate the tax rate in the preliminary budget. "I hate to make a prediction now. It's strictly a guessing game. The school board does not adopt a final budget until August, and even that could change since the county Board of Supervisors adopts the final tax rate," he said.

'Medical-legal hotline' set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The creation of a "medical-legal hotline" has been announced by county-area doctors and attorneys to aid in problem-solving between the two groups.

John J. Quinn, president of the Los Angeles County Bar Assn., said the hotline is a beginning toward improved guidelines for use in examining medical malpractice claims.

Installs president

Mudd hands out 1,000th degree

Harvey Mudd College installed a president and marked a milestone — the awarding of its 1,000th degree — in recent commencement ceremonies.

D. Kenneth Baker was officially inducted as the second president by Henry T. Mudd, chairman of the board of trustees in Claremont rites. Baker became president last September. Joining in the installation ceremony was Joseph B. Platt, a trustee and the college's first president. He is now president of Claremont University Center.

During the awarding of degrees, senior David L. Grier of Las Vegas unexpectedly found himself the subject of an ovation when it was disclosed he was the college's 1,000th graduate. He was handed his degree by David Howell of Upland, a member of the Class of 1961, the first four-year class. The engineering and science college opened in 1957.

Earlier in the program, F. Michael Christ was recognized as the first Harvey Mudd graduate to achieve a perfect grade-point average, 4.0, over four years. A resident of Silver Lake, Ohio, he majored in mathematics and was the recipient of a National Science Foundation Fellowship.

President Baker gave the commencement address, entitled "Between Six Walls." He depicted the walls as human frailty, humanity's limited vision of itself, economic and social structures, the family, and value systems, all of which, he said, frame mankind's intellectual and physical activity.

Baker called science and technology the "tools we have accumulated inside the walls" which could "make possible an entirely different life . . ." He said the college would continue to stress high standards of personal achievement and intellectual curiosity and to bring them to bear on real world problems.

Ninety-two students received bachelor of science degrees. Four also received master of engineering degrees.

County okays plan for equestrians to use flood channel

Los Angeles County supervisors have taken another step to provide additional recreational facilities for county residents by approving plans and specifications for a series of ramps to permit horses and their riders access to a stretch of flood control channel located in La Verne and San Dimas.

Bids on the estimated $280,000 project will be opened in the county flood control office on July 1. Award of contract will be made about 10 days later.

Supervisor Pete Schabarum said the project will extend from the Live Oak and Marshall Canyon channel in La Verne. Construction of five access ramps will permit equestrians to use the channel invert as a trail, passing under busy vehicular roads. Also included is an equestrian bridge, additional protective fencing and minor grading to promote safer use of the facility.

Plans were prepared by the county Flood Control District, which will supervise construction. Maintenance and operation of the equestrian trail will be a responsibility of the county Parks and Recreation Department, which is participating with the Flood Control District in providing funds to offset construction costs.

Work will begin within 30 days following contract award. The job is slated for completion within 60 calendar days, Schabarum said.

County child care cost cut

Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes and Keith Comrie, director of the Department of Public Social Services, have developed a program to reduce county costs for child care by more than $3 million annually.

Hayes said the savings will be realized by obtaining Juvenile Court jurisdiction over all dependent children who previously were handled by the department on a volunteer basis.

"Under federal regulations, a child who is placed with the department on a volunteer basis by his or her parents is not eligible to have the cost of out-of-home paid for under various welfare programs.

"By processing all eligible children — those who will be in foster homes or children's institutions for more than 30 days — through the Juvenile Court we will reduce the cost to county property taxpayers for care of these children by more than $3 million," he explained.

Hayes said Comrie plans to begin phasing in the procedure immediately, with a target date of Sept. 1 to complete the changeover from voluntary to court-ordered placement.

R.H. storm drain

Los Angeles County Supervisor Pete Schabarum has announced the completion of a $59,282 storm drain in Rowland Heights.

Pascal and Ludwig, Inc. of Upland was the contractor. This project provided two storm drain lines at Mescal Street east of Ablano Avenue. The construction of the two drains has formed a closed system, thus eliminating surface erosion and hazardous conditions which occur during storms. The work involved the construction of 1,070 feet of main line reinforced concrete pipe conduit 54 to 33 inches in diameter.

The project was financed from the 1970 storm drain bond issue program.

Cranston asks labor to support energy plan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston has urged labor to back President Carter's energy proposals, saying the program is critical to the economy, to the balance of trade and to the fight against unemployment and inflation.

The California Democrat said that unless the country lessens its dependence on foreign oil, the stability of the dollar and the world economic order will be threatened.

Cranston, speaking Monday to a convention of the AFL-CIO Office and Professional Employes Union, also said the nation's 42-year-old labor relations law needs to be completely overhauled.

"We have lived too long with the imperfections, the delays, the contradictions of the National Labor Relations Act," Cranston said.

Local flights to Luxembourg?

World Airways, which recently filed a request to initiate service from the West Coast to London, has also asked the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to fly from California to Luxembourg.

Both requests have been made with the idea of providing "cheapy" service to air passengers to allow for relatively inexpensive rates, according to a World Airways attorney.

The attorney said that World Airways had not determined what fares it would ask for either flight.

The airline applied for authority to fly to Luxembourg (a tiny country sandwiched between Belgium, France and West Germany), May 26, six days after asking CAB to permit World Airways flights to London.

According to the attorney, the Long Beach-Los Angeles-Ontario area is one of several terminal points being considered for both routes.

In addition to the Southern California locations, World has asked for permission to leave from Oakland, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis and Baltimore.

The airline originally asked for permission to establish service between London, and Baltimore, Newark, Oakland and the Los Angeles area.

"Both proposals call for low-cost, no-frill type service," the attorney said. "It's going to be a cheapy service."

CAB has taken no action on either request.

Named to RTD board

CHARLES H. STORING, a La Puente City councilman, has been re-elected to the Southern California Rapid Transit District board of directors.

Storing won the unanimous vote of the Corridor "D" Subcommittee of the City Selection Committee, consisting of San Gabriel Valley cities.

He was first appointed to the RTD board last September to fill the unexpired term of former board member Adelina Gregory. His present appointment represents his first four-year term on the 11-member RTD Board.

Storing, elected to the La Puente City Council in 1960, has also served twice as that city's mayor.

Horse hearing June 21

The Claremont Planning Commission has agreed to continue the hotly-disputed matter of the Claremont Riding Academy until its June 21 meeting.

Applicant William Myers asked the commission Tuesday night to continue discussion of his request for a conditional use permit to allow up to 42 horses on Myers' property at the north end of Mills Avenue in unincorporated territory as a condition of annexation to the city of Claremont.

Myers explained that many of his supporters who wished to speak are out of town.

Residents of Via Padova, also in unincorporated territory, have petitioned the city not to allow the academy.

The Claremont Foothill Association also has come out against the academy.

The city staff has recommended that Myers be allowed to have up to 26 horses, subject to several conditions.

Cocaine found on girl, 17

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 90-day diagnostic study has been ordered for a 17-year-old Daly City girl who admitted trying to smuggle $600,000 worth of cocaine from Peru in her girdle.

Customs agents said they found 3.2 pounds of cocaine in her girdle when she arrived at the Los Angeles International Airport last May. Her identity was withheld because of her age.

Lady castoffs get cleaned up for luncheon at fashionable tea room

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Nine "shopping bag" ladies, social castoffs usually seen collecting junk along city streets, found themselves honored guests for once in a world of crystal, china and silver.

They were feted at a special luncheon Tuesday in the Crystal Tea Room atop John Wanamaker's center city department store.

"I thought it was perfectly fascinating," said Reeves Wetherill, a store vice president who organized the affair, "and I thought one thing that one of them said to me was particularly heartwarming.

"She leaned across the table and said, 'Mr. Wetherill, this is the loveliest thing that's happened to me in my life, and if I had a gold medal, I'd give it to you,'" Wetherill said.

The luncheon was born in a letter written by Sylvia Jacobsen, 68, and published by a local newspaper.

Mrs. Jacobsen, Marie to her friends and "the duck lady" to others because her quacking sounds can be heard for blocks on Philadelphia's streets, wrote that she would love to dine in the Crytal Tea Room just once before she died.

The room, with its dark brown table, vermilion rug and chandelier, is used to entertain celebrities who come to shop at Wanamaker's, one of Philadelphia's classiest stores.

The store, prompted by a woman who saw the letter and offered to contribute $100 toward a luncheon, decided to sponsor the event itself.

Nuns at the Mercy Hospice, a Catholic mission where Mrs. Jacobsen and 14 other women in similar circumstances stay overnight, helped prepare the women for the event.

"Most of the ladies took showers and got clean clothes at our place," said Sister Marie Louise. "They were so excited about it. They really were thrilled, and they enjoyed it very much."

She said the women come from "various backgrounds and usually end up at the Mercy Hospice when they have no place else to go.

"I would say most of these ladies are a little confused. Most of them have been in state hospitals and have been released and their families won't take them back," she said.

For lunch, they had chicken filet.

"The ladies were just as nice as the people who come to celebrity luncheons for Zsa Zsa Gabor and Bob Hope," Wetherill said. "There was no embarrassment. They adored their presents.

"They kept looking in the bags and getting the presents out and looking at them as if to make sure they still were there," he said.

Wetherill declined to say how much the event cost the store.

"It's not a question of money," he said. "This was a chance to show people who had never had anything like this what genuine hospitality is like."

Before the luncheon, the nine women were treated to an organ recital and received small bags containing samples of various cosmetics. "They were not shopping bags," said Wetherill.

Judge won't bar chains in court

SAN DIEGO (AP)— Chief U. S. District Court Judge Edward J. Schwartz says he is against forcing prisoners to appear in chains, but will not tell another judge to halt the practice.

Schwartz' decision Monday was in a suit by Federal Defenders of San Diego, Inc., against U. S. Magistrate Harry McCue, who requires prisoners to be manacled when they appear in his court.

Eugene Iredale of Federal Defenders said in the petition that such a rule exceeds the bounds of decency, but McCue said in his answer that he is concerned with security.

"I wish he would do it differently, but I don't think he (McCue) has abused his discretion," Schwartz said in his ruling.

He added he abhors keeping prisoners shackled in the courtroom.

Study hits poor logos

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent survey of over 5,000 letterheads by the Cotton Fiber Paper Council shows that more than 80 per cent of business letterheads may not be doing their primary job: helping businesses identify themselves.

The survey analysis found that the vast majority of letterheads had poorly placed logos or logos that reproduced poorly in small scale.

Moreover, more than 75 per cent of the letterhead designs didn't fit the corporate product or service category, over 80 per cent needed printing improvement and over 60 per cent needed paper upgrading.

UGH! — Toni Sheldon, a nursing student at Skagit Valley College in Mount Vernon, Wash., looks like she can use some medical help after a couple of healthy puffs on this cigar. She was taking part in a cigar-smoking contest on campus.

Califano charges poor health care

Hospital inflation on rampage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tendency of some hospitals to do too much testing and too much operating can hurt people's health as well as their pocketbooks, says Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano Jr.

Califano charged that unnecessary medication, hospitalization, testing, and surgery . . . can be positively harmful to health, and can constitute poor health care policy."

Testifying before a Senate subcommittee investigating Medicare-Medicaid reform, Califano warned that unless costs can be brought under control, there will be even more "rampaging inflation" in the hospital industry.

He also said rising doctors' fees are being studied by the administration.

Califano cited an example of dangerous hospital techniques, saying one Massachusetts hospital with special cardiac facilities had an unusually high heart surgery patient death rate from 1958 to 1975.

One reason was that the hospital performed few open-heart operations "and the resultant inexperience of the cardiovascular team contributed to those sickeningly poor results," said Califano.

He said the administration's proposal to set up a Health Care Financing Administration would contain strong economic incentives for hospitals to avoid unnecessary use of medical techniques.

"Unlike the current cost reimbursement system," he said, "our program would reward the hospital which chooses to reduce the length of patient stay or reduce unnecessary admissions."

Califano contended that $5 billion could be saved in hospital costs without sacrificing health care.

"It would provide a little weight watching for the obese hospitals of this nation," he said, listing such hospital excesses as too many beds, too many expensive x-ray machines, and unneeded facilities for therapies.

"Every hospital has every piece of expensive health care equipment they want, and they use it once a day or once a week; and we come along and pick up the tab," the secretary said.

He said the government might have to use additional taxpayer dollars to pay for Medicare and Medicaid unless it can somehow limit hospital profits.

The administration is advocating a short-term 9 per cent cap on revenues only until a long-term solution can be found, Califano said.

He said the new Health Care Financing Administration would improve the Medicare and Medicaid systems by coordinating the two programs, which would reduce costly duplication of services and and cut down on fraud and abuse in medical programs for the poor and aged.

New laser beam rifle in big demand

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Policemen swear by it. At least one prison has equipped its guard towers with it. Foreign countries are buying it, and the king of Spain asked for one and got two.

The object of their interest is the American 180, a lightweight, .22-caliber, automatic rifle that fires 30 rounds a second from a 177-round magazine. It can be fitted with a telescopic sight that pinpoints targets with a red spot of light projected by a laser.

"The rifle is the most controllable handheld weapon in the world," is the flat assertion of Charles Goff, president of American International Corp. of Salt Lake City, which markets both rifle and scope.

Others praise the warning given by the visible light beam, and the relatively low killing power of its small ammunition.

Goff said the U.S. State Department — whose permission he obtained to market the rifle abroad — told him Spain's King Juan Carlos asked for the rifle while visiting the White House last year. Goff said he gave the king two rifles, one chromeplated.

The rifle, manufactured near Innsbruck, Austria, sells for $1,000 with the laser scope, $350 without. It is accurate up to 200 yards, Goff said. The scope can focus at night on a laser-illuminated target up to a mile away.

(Laser is an acronym for Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation. A laser amplifies light into a beam of perfectly aligned streams of photons, the particles which make up light.)

Goff said the rifle's advantages over other police weapons is its semiautomatic capability, use of relatively cheap .22-caliber ammunition and lack of recoil, which keeps the barrel from bucking during firing.

He said sale and possession of the weapon is strictly controlled by the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and cannot be legally owned by a private citizen.

Goff, who began mass-producing the rifle in 1974 after buying the patent from two Salt Lake City men in 1969, said he has sold about 1,000 to some 300 law enforcement agencies throughout the country. One of them, the Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., police department, has used the rifle and scope to deadly effect.

A year ago, Sgt. Frank Scheler of Ft. Lauderdale said, an armed robber was killed and his partner wounded by two short bursts from the rifle after officers were fired upon. He said the wounded man surrendered when police trained the visible laser light on him, showing him in no uncertain terms that they had him in their sights.

"We're extremely satisfied with it," Scheler said. "We have made it known we will use the weapon in stakeout situations, and we have." He attributed a 39 per cent drop in armed robberies in the city last year in part to acquisition of the rifle.

A Utah State Prison officer, Van Houten, said he broke up an inmate disturbance in 1974 with the rifle and scope. "When I put that red dot on some of them ... they got back in their cells but fast," he said, adding prison officials later decided to arm tower guards with the rifles.

"It was discussed pretty thoroughly, but one of the advantages is that it's not as lethal, being a .22, as a 30.06," he said.

"We're negotiating presently for sale of about 25,000" of the rifles, Goff said. He said five or six countries were among those interested, but he declined to name them, except to say some were NATO-affiliated.

"Most every country we've shown it to has shown interest in it as a police weapon unanimously, as a prison weapon unanimously, as a special forces weapon unanimously and then some as a naval or army weapon," Goff said.

MSAC board-teacher feud intensifies

Trustees accept reorganization plan over faculty objections

Strained relations between the administration and faculty at Mt. San Antonio College were intensified Wednesday when the college's board of directors accepted a controversial reorganization plan for study.

Faculty representatives opposed to the reorganization crowded into the board's meeting room, causing the site of the meeting to be shifted to the college's student center.

Speakers attacked the proposed reorganization, which the college's faculty association may ultimately fight in court if adopted by the board of directors.

The controversial plan would reorganize 27 current departments into four new divisions, which would eliminate department chairmanships and other posts held by senior faculty members.

Miss Pat Perez, president of the faculty senate, has described the plan as a "power play" aimed at curtailing faculty influence in operation of the instructional program.

The faculty association has already filed charges against the college with the Educational Employment Relations Board, contending that reorganization of the faculty structure is a negotiable matter that should be included in discussion of a new faculty contract.

Members of the board of directors in accepting the reorganization plan for study made no comments indicating how they will vote on the matter. It is expected to return to the board for a decision at the June 22 meeting.

While faculty members are disgruntled over the proposed reorganization, neither can they find any joy in the college's tentative budget, which was presented to the board Wednesday.

The tentative budget is basically a duplication of the current year's budget, but has a $423,000 deficit without allowance for any salary increases.

It totals $25.9 million and does not presently call for an increase in the district's 71-cent property tax rate, although an increase in the tax would be one possible method of dealing with the deficit.

The budget was accepted by the board for further study.

Tax cut for Bonita district?

Residents in the Bonita Unified School District may be receiving a gift this year — in the form of a lower tax rate.

School board members adopted a $12 million tentative budget Wednesday night that estimates a 5-cent drop in the general fund tax rate, to $4.50 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Noel Shutt, director of educational services, explained the assessed valuation is going up 20 per cent this year, "so we can lower the tax rate." Many new homes are being built in the district, raising the assessed valuation.

District officials will spend more money, however, with the total $12,029,395 budget for 1977-78 being 6.78 per cent higher than last year's $11,265,948. Inflation factors contribute to the higher figure, administrators indicate.

Board members had only minor questions about the budget and approved it unanimously.

Officials cautioned the budget was only "tentative" at this time and a final budget will not be approved until the first week of August.

Ontarians' trial begins

The murder trial of two men accused of gunning down an Ontario youth near Virginia Street and Flora Avenue in Ontario Feb. 21 is slated to begin this week in West Valley Superior Court.

Richard Mathews, 24, of 800 N. Holmes Ave., Ontario, and Lawrence Walter Schwan, 24, of 1802 E. Granada St., Ontario, were arrested on murder charges shortly after Henry Alcala, 15, of 428 S. Plum Ave., Ontario, was fatally shot. Alcala died of a shotgun wound.

For the past three days, defense attorneys have attempted to suppress certain evidence used by the police investigating the shooting. Attorneys are questioning the methods used in the arrest of Mathews. Mathews was arrested at Schwan's home where police were seeking to question Schwan in the slaying.

Vaccine clinic

The Claremont school district will offer immunizations for measles, polio and diphtheria-tetanus today from 1 to 4:30 p.m. at the El Roble Intermediate School multipurpose room.

Parental permission is required for the inoculation. On April 28, 700 inoculations were given at El Roble.

Body found

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The badly decomposed body of a child found a month ago in Angeles National Forest was identified Wednesday as an eight-year-old Los Angeles boy missing from his home since April, police said.

Court reform vote delay

Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors has delayed for one week voting on court reform recommendations being proposed by the Los Angeles Superior Court Committee on Court Improvements.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn requested the delay, explaining that he had had insufficient time in which to study the recommendations coming out of the committee.

"I feel, too, there may be some compromise, particularly on the number of additional judges they are recommending," said Hahn. "I hear that figure may drop from 34, which we have heard in the past, down to possibly 20."

Presiding Superior Court Judge William P. Hogoboom told the supervisors the court committee would have possibly 40 recommendations on court reform ready for their consideration, as well as the consideration of the legislature, by June 30.

"Superior Court is anxious to work with the Board of Supervisors, bar associations and justice agencies, in the development of court improvements which may save judicial time," said Hogoboom.

Budget talks

Pomona school board will discuss the 1977-78 district budget and hear a report from the Diamond Bar high school site committee in a special meeting at 7:15 p.m. today in the board room of the Education Center, 800 S. Garey Ave., Pomona.

The board will consider the appointment of a new principal for Washington Elementary School and will consider several other items held over from Tuesday's regular meeting.

There will be no oral communications section on the agenda.

Hot dogs great, but marshmallows don't work

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Sunlight has been put to work cooking snacks for the special education class at Bonita High School.

The class's new "solar cooker" was unveiled on the La Verne campus recently where passersby had an opportunity to enjoy hotdogs, bacon, eggs and a variety of other food cooked through the magic of solar energy.

The project was designed by special education teacher Walt Altobelli and used as a learning experience for the students in his class.

"We're cooking on a paper stove," said Altobelli. It took his class about two weeks to complete the project. Students worked on it in only 10 or 15-minute segments.

Altobelli estimates cost of the project was about $3.50 to $4 and says anyone can build one in his own backyard.

The solar cooker is little more than a reflector of the sun's heat. Altobelli's model is constructed from cardboard and aluminum foil which he has used to create the large reflecting dish. Heat congregates at a hot spot where a frying pan is held by a pole to collect the heat just as it would off a gas or electric range.

"It's not only an exercise in working together for the kids," said Altobelli, "but also teaches them something about energy conservation and ecology. They learn that they can't always rely on government or industry to provide conveniences for them, that they have to be self reliant."

So far the solar cooker has produced an interesting accumulation of data. Altobelli's students have seen the heater cook a half-pound of bacon in the morning and boil a pan of water at 1:30 p.m.

The group discovered early that the pan in which the cooking was done had to be painted black on the bottom to collect the heat and make the cooking possible.

Says Altobelli, "We tried to cook a marshmallow but found it wouldn't brown."

The problem, he later learned, was that the whiteness of the marshmallow caused it to reflect the heat. However, the cooker did heat up the metal rod on which the marshmallow sat, causing it to melt on the inside.

Altobelli says the cooker's strong points are that it creates no mess or smoke. When you're finished cooking, just pick it up and put it away.

The weak points are, of course, the fact that you can't use it on a cloudy day or at night. He said in one of the early experiments with the cooker, insufficient heat was being generated. Considering the situation, Altobelli learned that a thin film of dust had coated the tin foil reflectors and, though thin, created enough of a difference to render the cooker inoperable.

Altobelli said he hopes the idea catches on and noted that one student, Gary Nicholson, is already building a solar cooker at his home.

Valley business outlook—A rosy $1 billion

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

The valley's economy heated up during 1976 as taxable sales soared upwards by more than 17 per cent, according to the annual report released today by the State Board of Equalization.

Figures for the nine valley incorporated communities fell just short of the billion dollar mark for the year, totalling $993,998,000 compared to $847,016,000 during 1975.

With the state's inflation rate for the 12 months estimated at 6.1 per cent, that means the actual volume increase of goods and services in the valley increased by slightly more than 11 per cent during 1976.

Healthy increases were recorded in virtually all valley cities, with La Verne, Upland, Chino and Ontario leading on a percentage basis.

Individual city totals are:

—Pomona up 12.6 per cent from $322,082,000 in 1975 to $362,967,000 in 1976.

—Ontario up 20.3 per cent from $164,057,000 to $197,492,000.

—Montclair up 13.9 per cent from $153,199,000 to $174,504,000.

—Upland up 27.1 per cent from $80,906,000 to $102,887,000.

—Chino up 25.8 per cent from $49,452,000 to $62,249,000.

—Claremont up 17.7 per cent from $31,291,000 to $36,856,000.

—La Verne up 30.1 per cent from $21,963,000 to $28,586,000.

—San Dimas up 20.6 per cent from $20,268,000 to $24,463,000.

—Walnut up 5.1 per cent from $3,798,000 to $3,994,000.

Local governments during the year receive one per cent of the value of taxable sales through the state's collection of sales taxes.

Statewide taxable sales during 1976 rose by 14.1 per cent to a record total of $83.8 billion. The Southern California region rose by 13.6 per cent.

Burwell CofC chief

Robert Burwell, administrator of Pomona Valley Community Hospital, has been chosen as the new president of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce.

Burwell, who will be installed at the chamber's annual dinner June 29 at Kellogg West on the Cal Poly campus, succeeds Joe Gendron, editor of the Progress Bulletin, as president of the organization.

Vice presidents during the 1977-78 fiscal year will be John Felton, manager of Security Pacific Bank in Pomona; Ed Kolodge, manager of Potlatch Paper Corp., Northwest Division; and Charles McDaniel, district manager for the Southern California Edison Co.

Five persons have also been selected to sit on the chamber's board of directors. They are Stan Kawa, Mark Warren, Stan Etzen, Jay Colvin and Dr. Fritz Moser.

The new directors will remain on the board through 1980.

SB survey

Some 75,000 San Bernardino County citizens will get an opportunity this week to tell the County Board of Supervisors what they think about a wide-range of county services — from welfare to road maintenance.

Survey questionnaires went into the mail Tuesday. Final results will be tabulated immediately following the July 4 weekend. Supervisors will then analyze them prior to the start of public hearings on the 1977-78 budget.

The purpose of the survey is to provide for citizens' input into the budget-making process.

The 75,000 residents to receive the questionnaire were selected at random from among registered voters. Equal distribution will be made among the county's five supervisorial districts.

Children who can use help

U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston has turned his attention to the serious problem of care for hundreds of thousands of helpless children in need of homes. Because in California and elsewhere these cases are handled by local government, the exact numbers are not known but are estimated as high as 500,000.

They range from infants to teen-agers. Some are without parents while others are only half orphan or not orphaned at all but have been taken from their parents for various reasons. Many are placed in foster homes while many others remain in "temporary" county homes.

For the most part the children are innocent, having committed no offense other than that of being born into a world which has failed to welcome them.

Cranston sees the solution in promoting adoptions and has authored a bill which would provide federal subsidies to adopting parents on a level equal to that granted foster parents.

There may be merit to Cranston's program but the facts seem to be against any great success in terms of numbers, which leaves the senator barking up the wrong tree.

It is true that there are far more couples desiring to adopt children than there are babies to go around, a dirty fact which has led to a black market in adoptions now being combatted in this state by legislative efforts of state Sen. George Zenovich.

But the demand is predominantly for WASP (white, Anglo Saxon Protestant) babies. The children involved in the big numbers of homeless, whether Cranston realizes it or not, are not babies and are mostly blacks or other minorities.

And even adoption of WASP babies is not easy under existing laws and is more than a little difficult when natural parents are alive, a fact found through bitter experience to be all too true by foster parents seeking to adopt a child placed in their care.

The further fact against adoption, again applying more to the minority children than WASP's, is that the authorities cannot even find enough foster homes for them, especially the older ones, let alone adoptive homes.

And while social workers speak of the need for TLC (tender loving care) of the foster homes, the record shows the average foster child is shunted from home to home no less than three times in its brief childhood, which means that many are uprooted more frequently. That, of course, is the real crime, for there is nothing more traumatic for a child than the insecurity which comes from these shifts from one home to another.

There is little dispute that adoption is better than foster homes and foster homes can be better than institutions. Whatever can be done to help these children gain the bliss of adoptive parents should be done and the care found in good foster home programs should not be abandoned. But perhaps Cranston might consider additionally what seems to be a more certain means of assuring peace of mind for the bulk of the children who can't be placed in either.

This would be utilization of the homes operated by religious organizations and expansion of them with federal subsidies. This approach would have the advantage of having readily available wholesome homes for all children without any danger of the subsequent emotionally disturbing changes from one home to another.

That kind of program probably will be opposed by the social workers, for the millions now spent in salaries for them to pre-investigate prospective homes and for routine follow-up inspections to assure continuing proper care would not be necessary, thus leaving more to be spent on the kids.

Thoughts

"Truly, I say to you, unless you turn and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven. Whoever humbles himself like this child, he is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven." — Matthew 18:3, 4.

Humility leads to strength and not to weakness. It is the highest form of self-respect to admit mistakes and to make amends for them. — John J. McCloy, American diplomat.

Then Job answered: "I have heard many such things; miserable comforters are you all." — Job 16:1, 2.

"In no direction that we turn do we find ease or comfort. If we are honest and if we have the will to win we find only danger, hard work and iron resolution." — Wendell L. Willkie, American statesman.

There is nothing better for a man than that he should eat and drink, and find enjoyment in his toil. This also, I saw, is from the hand of God; — Eccl. 2:24.

"The only method by which people can be supported is out of the effort of those who are earning their own way. We must not create a deterrent to hard work." — Robert A. Taft, American statesman.

Just in jest

We Americans are becoming so adept at suing for damages that by now even the United States has become a prime target for such get-rich-quick schemers. Already certain individuals have filed suit for $1 billion damages, claiming that they were improperly spied upon by the government. Which is just about as high as one can go in an effort to collect easy money. — But even though there are none too high to escape this sort of harassment, it also appears there are none too small. Latest reports indicate that even barbers are taking out malpractice insurance. And now, with the word out that the money is there, it won't be long before you will be reading about million dollar suits for a razor nick or a miss-snipped curl. Look for dramatic increases soon in the cost of haircuts and shaves to cover such a contingency.

Brown wavers on environment

By EARL G. WATERS

Gov. Jerry Brown's seeming popularity may stem from nothing more than a brashness groping in the dark for solutions to his own dilemmas.

At least from a recent appearance before the directors of the conservation-minded Sierra Club, which claims to represent 170,000 members, it would seem the governor is as confused as everyone else about where he really stands on environmental issues.

Brown, the candidate for governor, became the darling of ecologists with his support for coastal protection laws, air pollution controls and his opposition to further water projects. In opposing the New Melones Dam project he foolishly claimed the state had all the water it needed for the next generation and beyond. The drought quickly proved the miscalculation and the governor just as hurriedly sought to alter his stance by protesting President Carter's plans to halt the Auburn Dam construction.

If that fooled anybody into believing that Brown no longer opposes water projects, drought or no drought, they should remember that his executive secretary, Gray Davis, is continuing the efforts against New Melones and last month filed another letter asking additional delays in the project. Furthermore, it also should be noted that Brown appointed as deputy director of the Department of Water Resources one Gerald H. Meral, an attorney whose career to date has been spent fighting water development projects across the nation.

But facing re-election which he desires with passion in furtherance of his lofty ambitions to be president, Brown has felt the sting of both labor and business for his unqualified support of environmental controls which both groups feel are inhibiting industrial development.

In the turnabout to woo back labor and industry by parading a pro-business attitude, Brown has now engendered suspicion and even opposition among the conservationists.

Like a juggler trying to keep a dozen balls in the air, Brown rushed to the Sierra Club to give them reassurance. Although he had been preaching "streamlining" of government controls over new industry in reaction to the cancellation of plans by Dow Chemical which hit his pro-business image with the jar of an earthquake, Brown told the Sierra Club the decision barring Dow's proposed petrochemical plant was right.

Implying the plant would have done more harm than good, he said, "Air is a commodity that is simply used up when filled with junk. If we're going to expand industry with the resultant pollution, let's make sure we get plenty of jobs out of it."

Having thus pacified the Sierra clubbers, he then cautioned them to place more emphasis on the economic consequences of their work. "Let's not work for environmental changes over the backs of someone who will be displaced from a job."

Looking over the audience, he apparently was suddenly struck with the affluence of the Sierra Club members. This prompted the chiding remark, "I don't see any blacks, Chicanos or labor here, but they are the ones being displaced because of the environmental work."

In cold review of the governor's comments it becomes increasingly difficult to determine whether he is for environmental protection or not. The fact seems to be that he isn't sure himself. Was he in support of the Dow Chemical project or wasn't he? His observation that the rejection of its application was a correct decision refutes his angry statements that the process needs streamlining.

The governor is either in a mulled state or he is attempting to play the calculated game of appearing to be all things to all people.

PB accused of name-calling

Dear Editor:

As a member of Common Cause with a wife in the League of Women Voters, I resent your calling me a "do gooder" and her a "dowager" in your editorial of May 8.

Your editorial that tried to plead by "name-calling" the cause of corruption of the American political process by special interest groups is a new low in journalism.

It was, however, a pleasant surprise to see you support greater people participation in the political process and agree to the soundness of the political reform laws that were overwhelmingly passed by the people in 1974 in spite of your opposition at that time.

Before you react against Assemblyman Fazio's campaign finance bill, AB 1372, I suggest you read it carefully. The misconceptions of the bill displayed in your editorial indicated you hadn't.

Coverage of drought

Dear Editor:

I am concerned about the water shortage. It is very evident to me that most of our citizens here in Southern California do not realize we still have a serious problem. I hope this will stimulate your efforts toward impressing upon the public our extreme condition. If everyone doesn't help conserve our resources, the summer months will be an unusual hardship for us all.

To my understanding, the general public believes our drought is over. It is imperative that articles be written now, to impress upon them that Northern California did not get all the rain that we recently had. And we also have to inform that we get our water from Northern California, and there may not be any excess supply for us this year.

This is a very critical issue, one we haven't been faced with in prior years. To many people it is just another political joke. I urge you to help me and other concerned residents inform our neighbors of what could be a disaster.

Bureaucrats may show Carter

WASHINGTON — President Carter still has the impression that he is in charge of the federal government. His voice is soft but his manner is firm. Behind his desk, he scribbles terse instructions on staff papers and speaks quiet orders into the ozone, pushing buttons to direct his voice to the right assistant. Out of the air come back subservient replies, usually: "Yes, Mr. President."

He has sounded a gentle warning to the vast federal bureaucracy that he expects renewed vigor from them, that they must cut out their extravagances, that changes are coming. As evidence he means business, he fired Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub for criticizing his decision to withdraw troops from Korea.

The President has the power, indeed, to fire generals, to formulate policies and to direct the nation's affairs. But one day he may wake up, in his heart of hearts, to the fact that those faceless bureaucrats are really running the country.

Their ultimate strength is the finesse, the unobtrusiveness, by which they rule. So gently, prosaically, gradually and invisibly do they tighten the bonds that the President may never fully appreciate the extent to which he is in their grip. They will be ingratiating; they will always say, "Yes, Mr. President." But all the while they will manipulate the policymaking machinery.

Though we revile bureaucracy for its bumbling and futility, in fact our presidents have been no match for it, and so it relentlessly encroaches upon them. Part of the reason for this historic impotence is that much of the time presidents don't know precisely what they're talking about, while the bureaucracy does. They have to rely on the bureaucracy for information, for expertise in drafting their measures; and the civil servants can usually show them 10 practical reasons why their ideas won't work.

Presidents are also outgunned by the troops they inherit. Jimmy Carter invaded Washington, for example, with a fragmentary force of no more than 1,200 men and women. Yet they were thrust into command of a worldwide civilian force of 2,832,000 bureaucrats and a military force of 2,100,000 volunteers.

The bureaucracy also has a million telephones connected to hundreds of pressure groups, with which to stir up opposition against any directive the bureaucrats cannot stomach. They have also perfected the technique of solemnly pondering directives from on high, forever reviewing and revising the fine print, on the assumption that an unwanted directive will go away if they study it long enough.

In the end, presidents depart, while the bureaucrats abide. Any points the bureaucrats lose in the early rounds, they get back later, when the administration of the law or the order is entirely in their hands. A few deft changes of emphasis and all is as before.

The recall of Gen. Singlaub from South Korea has been compared to the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur two decades earlier. Editorials have hailed President Carter's success in disciplining Singlaub in contrast with President Truman's failure to restrain MacArthur. The end result, however, has been the other way around.

MacArthur's public statements were crafted to skirt overt insubordination yet permit insurrectionary inferences to be snapped up by a great following. He was seen by millions of fundamentalists as a mountain peak silhouetted against the lightning, the last bearer of the true flame.

But ultimately, MacArthur went too far in his statements; on April 11, 1951, President Truman boiled over and fired him, setting off a daily-heightening typhoon of national emotion. Yet MacArthur, to his undoubted dismay, faded away almost as quietly as his oratory had prophesied.

Singlaub's firing was less spectacular but more typical. The military bureaucracy paid lip service to the President but united behind the general. He appeared on Capitol Hill like MacArthur to repeat his criticism of the President's policy. But unlike MacArthur, Singlaub did not fade away. He wound up instead with a coveted new assignment as chief of staff of the Army's largest command.

It remains to be seen whether the military bureaucracy will get its way in Korea as it did in Vietnam. The late President John F. Kennedy was opposed to pouring troops into Vietnam. He wanted to form a crack counterinsurgency force, which could train the South Vietnamese in jungle fighting.

Overriding the opposition of the Pentagon bureaucracy, he established the Green Berets. But the unit became a military orphan, shunned by the big brass. The word quietly spread that service with the Green Berets was the wrong way to advance a military career.

In the end, the bureaucratic brass dumped manpower and firepower into Vietnam as they had wished. They also fought the conventional war they had favored — against, unfortunately, an unconventional enemy. The Vietcong's crude style of warfare, not unlike that used by our own forefathers to wrest independence from the British, confounded those who fought by the book. Thus, many Americans died in South Vietnam on the altar of the military bureaucracy.

Make money? Certainly can

It started out in Florida 10 years ago as an experiment for charity.

Collect old cans, turn them in, and Reynolds Aluminum Co. would make a per-pound contribution to charity.

Then the company discovered that recycling those old cans was not only commendable conservation but good business.

Now you can sell any old cans you collect for 17 cents a pound. And last year alone collectors of trash collected cash amounting to $17 million!

In Pleasant Hill, Ga., Walter Goranson launched his antilitter campaign by collecting and selling aluminum cans.

Last year he harvested $800.

The "tin can man" of Pleasant Hill is 89.

The recycling champion of the Chicago area is Mr. E. Williams. Last year he collected and turned in some 10,000 pounds of aluminum for an extra income of $1,700.

For the Camp Fire Girls of Seattle the incentive was more than money. They collected enough old cans in one cleanup week to keep a 10-year-old boy alive. Young Chris Harrison needs weekly kidney treatment which he can afford now.

Collecting old cans is a lucrative hobby for Chris Britton and Richard Antoniotti of Plymouth, Mass., and at the same time they are cleaning up and making more attractive to tourists the grounds around historic Plymouth Rock.

Colorado Springs, Colo.'s "super-recycler" is Mrs. Irmgard Cruz. She recently collected 30,728 cans — to pay for a new carpet in her home.

Students at Everett Carver School in Everett, Wash., collected enough empties to purchase a new backdrop curtain for their school auditorium.

Percy Ricketts — a retiree in Tampa, Fla. — says collecting old cans is also good exercise. He collects on foot along area roads, carefully bends from the waist for each pickup, "keeps the spine limber." And he harvests almost $100 a month which supplements his retirement income.

The "king of the can collectors" in Centralia, Wash., is Fred Lovin. The tens of thousands of cans he collects are sold to supply money for entertaining local orphans — fishing, basketball games, baseball games.

And efforts like these prosper us all.

Chairman David Reynolds of Reynolds Aluminum says each time aluminum is recycled it saves 95 percent of the energy that would be needed to make aluminum from scratch. Last year the 112 million pounds recycled by this one company saved the mining and importing of about 450 million pounds of bauxite and saved 728 million kilowatt hours of electricity.

Fifty per cent of all Reynolds Aluminum can production is now recycled, and the company is working toward 100 per cent.

It never ceases to amaze me that when we — individually and/or collectively — start out to do the right thing for the right reason, by George, we end up profiting in the process!

PET OF THE WEEK

"Waldo," a 10-month-old male Dachshund, will be available for adoption Saturday morning at the Humane Society of Pomona Valley in Pomona. The animal is good with children, eats a mixed diet and, according to the director Bruce Richards, will make an excellent pet.

Ann Landers

Tell your lover to get out

Dear Ann: Don't tell me I'm crazy. I already know it. What I need is help. All names in this mixed-up mess are fictitious.

My husband, Dan, and I are both 30. We've been married nine years and he is a college prof. I'm doing graduate work.

Two years ago, Dan's brother, Ron (age 18, 6-2, 195 lbs. and gorgeous), came to live with us while attending college.

My fondness for Ron and his responses to my "sisterly" affection blossomed into a very active sexual affair. At first I was rocked by my adolescent behavior but very soon I had to admit that Ron is a much better lover than my husband.

I now realize this dynamite-laden affair has got to stop before serious damage is done. But I've run into an unexpected problem. Ron insists we keep on till he finishes school, which is two years away. He promised to continue "light dating" for appearances' sake.

It would be impossible to end this affair so long as Ron remains under this roof. My problem is what to tell Dan. Why do I want his brother out of the house? The thought that Ron might squeal is not an impossibility.

Please help. — Nervous In Utah

Dear Ner: Tell Dan two years of playing substitute mama for his brother is enough and you feel the need for privacy. Moreover, Ron, at age 20, should learn to manage his own laundry, meals, etc., as a matter of independence.

If the kid squeals, he is a total rat. Put him out of the house as soon as possible and take your chances.

Dear Ann Landers: I am the wife of a physician who needs one of your best answers. I am not the only one with this problem, so you would be helping a great many people if you responded in print.

I can't count the numbers of friends and relatives who have phoned and asked me what to do about an ache or a pain — or worse yet, asked me to talk to my husband and get his opinion on their medical problem.

Why don't supposedly intelligent people understand:

1. A doctor's wife is not qualified to give medical advice.

2. No doctor can make an adequate diagnosis based on facts obtained from an intermediary.

I hate to be impolite but I don't know what to say to these people. Can you suggest something? — M.D.'s Wife In Casper

Dear Wife: Why don't you clip this column, keep it near the phone and read from it?

The only thing you might add is the suggestion that he or she call the doctor's office and make an appointment.

Dear Ann: Please give "Ugh" some better advice . . . she's the lady who found the worm in her food and hates to think of eating at Mary's house again.

As I see it, she has three choices: 1. Take her own lunch and tell the hostess the truth. 2. Take her own lunch and say she's on a special diet. 3. Eat with her eyes closed. — Good Card Players Are Hard To Find

Dear Good: Sorry, I still think my answer was better than yours. She should eat at home or put on her glasses and eat VERY CAREFULLY.

Why Teddy loved outdoors

It's common knowledge that none of our presidents was as fond of the great outdoors as was Teddy Roosevelt. He loved the unpeopled places, the plains and woods and mountains. Do you connect that bully bucolic bent of his to the fact that he was the only one of our presidents born in a big town? Namely, New York City. So do I.

Spoiling dog has drawbacks

DEAR DR. MILLER: What's the harm in spoiling your dog a little by feeding it from the table? She's very mannerly — just sits there quietly with those pleading eyes. I can't resist her. Truthfully, I don't try very hard. — C.D.

DEAR C.D.: Most spoiled dogs, when pleading eyes don't produce, will resort to other methods to satisfy their demands. Spoiling helps to create problem dogs. Malnutrition is the most likely physical result of feeding from the table. It can range from bone disease, particularly in the growing animal, to, usually, obesity in the older one. More acute undesirable effects range from indigestion to bloating or obstruction, the latter particularly from bones. Overall, then, the pleasures received from pampering a pooch at the table should be weighed against the potential psychological and physiological problems.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Sugar, my parakeet, is starting out like she did last year — laying a string of eggs and wearing herself out. I'd rather not give her shots for this if I can avoid it. Is there a natural method of egg control? What will turn her off? — W.M.

DEAR W.M.: Within the brain, the tiny hypothalamus is signaled by light to turn on the hormones and, eventually, egg production. To reverse the process, drastically reduce the amount of light Sugar receives in a 24-hour period. You need to devise a system allowing adequate draft-free ventilation for her cage, and yet exclude light. Since even a small amount of light may stimulate the hypothalamus, a total blackout's desirable. Shorten Sugar to an 8-hour "day" until she stops production.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm building a backyard pool and waterfall. The way I have it set up now, the waterfall is quite spectacular for the little water I actually use. Am I correct in assuming the fish will be healthier because of the large amount of oxygen being supplied by all these bubbles? — V.T.

DEAR V.T.: Unquestionably your waterfall will supply abundant oxygen to the pool, and probably the fish will benefit from it. It is possible to overdo a good thing though — even a supply of oxygen. While it's unlikely to be a factor in your pool arrangement, water falling from sufficient height may supersaturate the water with too much oxygen, causing gas bubbles in the blood of the fish similar to a deep-sea diver's bends. This supersaturation syndrom is fatal to the affected fish.

Erma Bombeck

'Curb junkie' now grown up

I am in the process of becoming a reformed saver.

It's hereditary, you know. In addition to an attic full of disposables, my grandmother was squired about by one current and four former husbands who were devoted to her. She could never discard anything.

My mother was just as bad. She had a stove drawer that had everything in it from a rolling pin with no handles to sheet music for a harpsichord, to the yellowed death notice of her iceman who died in 1937.

The symptoms began to show up in me when I was a small child. The neighbors called me "The Curb Junkie." Every Monday, I'd go up and down the street, picking my way through their trash for a lampshade, boxtop, flower pot, or a single boot.

By the time I was in high school, I had a collection of 36 pen wipers, three pictures of Sonja Henie and four of Ann Sheridan from old billfolds, a lunch box with Snow White and Seven Dwarfs, 15 composition notebooks, a Memory's Garden, a paperweight of Shirley Temple as Heidi, stubs from the circus, a splint from a first aid class, an invitation to Helen George's fifth birthday party, a tooth (possibly human) and 136 issues of Girl's Life.

By the time I was married a certain pattern had begun to develop.

I began to hoard things when no one was around. I wasn't just your average social collector anymore.

Then I began to lie about how much I was saving. I once told someone I only saved two or three milk cartons to make candles out of at Christmas when in reality I had 1500 cartons in the basement.

In time, my saving became more than I could handle and I became an embarrassment. (I'll never forget the time I was saving old cans and jerked one away from our minister's lips at a picnic.)

I told everyone I could stop saving anytime I wanted to, but when I tried to throw away 12 old grade cards, I knew I was lying to myself.

One afternoon, I was slipping two more twist ties into a box under the sink when I felt someone looking over my shoulder. It was my daughter. "What are you doing?" she asked.

"Nothing," I said, closing the drawer quickly.

"You're saving twist ties. Why, there must be thousands in there. What for?"

"I didn't want you to see me like this," I whimpered.

"Mom, don't you think I know how much you save? The old manila envelopes, the old calendars, the rubber bands from newspapers, the dried out felt tip pens . . . " She wiped her eyes with a tissue and threw it into the waste basket.

As I retrieved it and laundered it under the faucet, I assured her, "I can quit anytime I want to."

Dr. Lamb

Fainting isn't so rare

DEAR DR. LAMB — Today I had a blood sample taken. They took a rubber hose and made my vein stick out. When they gave me the shot, I started seeing colors and would have fainted if I hadn't put my head between my knees. I have fainted or nearly fainted every time I get a shot, cut my finger or one time when I moved my leg just after a cast was taken off.

It's embarrassing when you have to get a shot from the school nurse and faint. What causes me to faint? Can I stop fainting?

DEAR READER — This is more common than you might realize. Almost anyone will faint if given sufficient provocation. Even men in top physical condition and superior health, such as candidates for the astronaut program, would faint if run on a tread mill first and then put on a tilt table to strap them upright.

I presume you are fairly young. You may be happy to learn that the reflexes involved change as you mature and fainting is less likely to happen. By the time you are 25 and don't need to see the school nurse there may be no problem.

Most of the faints as you describe are caused by reflex actions. The arteries dilate so blood runs to the lower half of the body. The heart may slow or even stop momentarily. The combination of events leads to a lack of blood flow to the brain and that is what causes the faint. That is also why putting your head between your knees makes you feel better. It helps increase the blood flow to the brain.

Being in good physical condition helps. Learning to relax helps too. You would be less likely to have a fainting episode if you were lying down when you had your blood drawn. I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-2, Fainting: Loss of Consciousness or Syncope. It will give you a good idea of the causes of fainting. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 17-year-old girl. Several months ago I stopped eating red meat, though I still eat chicken or fish every day. I also eat many fruits and vegetables and drink lots of milk.

I haven't had my period for about two months and I am very worried that the cause is no meat. I take a multiple vitamin every morning and someone has suggested vitamin E. Should I start eating meat because of this? In all other aspects I am healthy.

DEAR READER — It is not uncommon for a young girl to have times when she is not regular or misses periods. There are many reasons for this, some totally unapparent even after a good examination. I would think it is more likely that your problem is just a natural phenomenon.

You don't need red meat since you are getting plenty of fish and chicken. The basic protein characteristics are not greatly different. Any vitamin needs you have are more than met by your diet plus the daily vitamin pill. No, I wouldn't recommend vitamin E.

Considering the nature of menstrual periods I would not be surprised if you have already resumed your regular schedule by the time you hear from me.

Opening lead — Q ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Old Man Z who used to play the dummy in the auction bridge columns of the roaring '20s was back at the club again.

He won the heart lead with his ace and remarked: "This looks like a Sidney Lenz hand of 1922. If everything is right I will make six, but undoubtedly everything is wrong and I had best try to insure my contract."

He promptly led a club to dummy's ace and proceeded to draw three rounds of trumps. Then he led his jack of clubs!

West couldn't do himself any good by ruffing so he chucked a diamond. Z was in dummy with the king of clubs and led back the 10. Now East had a Hobson's choice. If he played his queen, South would eventually get to discard a losing diamond on the nine of clubs; if he ducked, South wouldn't lose a club trick. Z was sure of 10 tricks and a top score.

Note that if Z had not played that club at trick two he would not have been able to make the contract.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader asks what you respond to a Blackwood four notrump when you have one ace and are void of a suit.

This is a very sticky question since it depends on partnership agreement. The straight Blackwood rule is to just bid five diamonds to show one ace, but most experts respond six diamonds if they think that their void will be a valuable one.

Under no circumstances do they respond five hearts to show two aces.

Growing concern over trend to exceed '55'

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Three years after the 55 miles-per-hour speed limit went into effect across the nation, authorities say Americans are driving more slowly than they used to, but are still going faster than the law allows.

An Associated Press spot check shows the number of traffic tickets has risen sharply since the days before the energy crisis forced the speed cutback.

Officials in most areas say they are enforcing the limit rigorously, but they concede that drivers often can travel up to five or 10 miles an hour faster than the limit without fear of retribution. There have been some attempts — mostly unsuccessful — to ease penalties for drivers who break the speed limit, but don't go faster than 75 miles an hour.

Authorities in some states say they are concerned by figures which show the average speed is inching up.

In North Dakota, for example, Col. Ralph Wood, superintendent of the state highway patrol, said average speeds last year ranged from 57.3 to 59.6 miles an hour. He said monthly surveys for this year show from 60 to 73 per cent of the drivers going faster than 55 miles an hour.

"It's the trend that bothers us," Wood said, noting that the situation was still better than it was in 1972-73 when drivers routinely traveled at 75 miles an hour.

The North Dakota Legislature passed a bill that would have limited fines for speeding between 55 and 65 miles an hour to $5, but it was vetoed by Gov. Arthur A. Link, who said the measure was "an invitation" to break the law.

Georgia officials also reported a trend upward in the average speed, from 58 miles an hour in 1974 to 61 miles an hour last year and 62 miles an hour this year.

A spokesman for the state patrol noted that different courts give different fines and added: "There are some areas where you cannot convict for speed less than 10 over."

He said the motorist is usually safe from a ticket if he or she is driving at 65 miles an hour on an interstate highway in Georgia. "But they're not driving at the speeds they once did. They used to run at 75 or 80. The motoring public is no fool. They know what speed they can drive and get away with."

C. W. Dorman, director of highway safety in South Carolina, said surveys show 51 per cent of the drivers are going over 55 miles an hour. Of these, about one-fourth are going faster than 60. One reason that almost half the drivers are complying with the speed limit may be the threat of tickets: Dorman said arrests the year after the 55 m.p.h. limit went into effect went up 50 per cent; the next year they increased 100 per cent and have remained at that level.

Lt. Patrick J. Monaghan of the Idaho State Police said the state is enforcing the lower speed limit "very heavily." As evidence, he noted that the 55 m.p.h. limit took effect in April 1974. From January through March of that year, he said, 3,758 speeding citations were issued. In the same period this year, there were 12,747 speeding citations.

In Kansas, Col. Allen Rush of the highway patrol, said speeding arrests are well-above pre-1974 levels. He said the number of arrests declined slightly in the first quarter of 1977, but attributed the drop to the severe weather that kept people off the roads.

Studies by the state Department of Transportation show that the average speed of vehicles on Kansas highways went from 63.2 in 1972 to 55.7 in 1974, 56.1 in 1975 and 57.1 in 1976.

"There are a lot of reasons for wanting to see the speed limit observed," said Rush. "First, there's safety. It is saving lots of lives. Secondly, it's the most important means available to government at this time for saving fuel."

South Dakota Highway Patrol Supt. Dennis Eisnach said average speeds on highways are stable at about 60 miles an hour. "Most drivers are traveling 55 and 60 and we're not seeing many above that speed," he said. "I think that's contributing to our lower rate of accidents, but it looks like we're never going to get everyone down to 55."

Col. Al Lubker, superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, said motorists are not complying with the limit and added that arrests are up sharply. He said most arrests are of motorists traveling between 65 and 70 miles an hour. Before the 55 m.p.h. limit went into effect, the speed of those arrested ranged from 75 to 80 miles an hour.

Under Missouri law, a driver is not assessed "points" against his license as long as he is not exceeding the previously posted limit, even if he is going over 55. He pays a fine only.

Lubker said the fact that drivers don't risk losing their licenses for speeding as long as they don't go too fast makes them more inclined to speed. "We have many people who are driving 60 and chiseling on the speed limit," he said.

Michigan, meanwhile, is considering a bill which would make driving over 55 to the list of offenses for which a driver gets points. Capt. Paul Ruge, commander of the state police, said compliance with the 55 m.p.h. limit is "excellent." He said the average statewide speed is 57.8 miles an hour. "For the most part, we've eliminated the high-speed driver," Ruge said.

A spokesman for the Illinois State Police said: "It is an overwhelming job trying to keep motorists in the 55 m.p.h. range. The magnitude of the problem is increasing. We have told the federal government it has to do a better job of convincing people of compliance."

In the first quarter of this year, studies showed 84 per cent of the drivers on interstates were going over 55 miles and hour, 35 per cent were going over 60 and 8 per cent were doing more than 65. In the same period last year, 77.8 per cent were going over 55, 32.6 per cent over 60 and 6.8 per cent over 65.

For some motorists, speeding is a sometime thing.

Kentucky State Police Lt. Ernest Bivens said he notices a difference in drivers when he is out in his private car and when he is in a police vehicle.

"It's a kind of lonely feeling to be in my Chevy Nova, having everyone go by and think, 'What's wrong with that nut going only 55?' But people are nice. They don't blow the horns too much though they do get kind of upset."

When Bivens is in uniform, in his blue and white cruiser, "it's the greatest difference in the world. When they pull up aside me, they lose their incentive for going 65."

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Portrait Gallery of the Smithsonian Institution is currently presenting an exhibition of documents and photographs covering more than a century of American cultural history.

"Artists and Writers" illustrates the close personal relationships that existed between such painters, sculptors and authors as artist Jerome Blum and author Sherwood Anderson, or 19th-century sculptor Hiram Powers and his friend, the poet William Cullen Bryant.

Exiled Solzhenitsyn finds solitude long denied him

CAVENDISH, Vt. (AP) — Nobel Prize winning writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn, exiled from his native Russia, has found in this small town the solitude long denied him.

Seldom seen, Solzhenitsyn refuses guests and declines numerous invitations.

"He wants peace and quiet and uninterrupted work. When he is not working as hard as he is now, he gladly meets people," said Solzhenitsyn's secretary, Irene Alberti.

Solzhenitsyn, she said, is writing "a series of historical novels, investigating the history of the Russian revolution. 'August 14th' — that was the first book in the series.

"It's a monumental work. I suppose it will be many volumes. It's a dream he's always cherished."

A narrow dirt road leads to Solzhenitsyn's 51-acre, fenced-in estate, about two miles from the center of this southern Vermont town. The house, described as simple but adequate, is not visible from the road. In front of an iron gate is a camera and loud speaker, where visitors state their business.

There are many visitors, said Town Clerk Ronald Butler, "Some from far away as Europe." He said all have been turned away.

Butler, acquainted with most of Cavendish's 1,260 residents, describes the Solzhenitsyn family as good citizens who pay their taxes.

"They've got several dogs They've paid dog taxes," he said, adding that they also have paid poll taxes

Butler said the estate has a private water and sewer system, and that the only other tax due will be property taxes, this fall.

"They're friendly people, they just want to be left alone," Butler said. "A few people have seen him (Solzhenitsyn). He seldom goes out."

With the 58-year-old Solzhenitsyn are his wife, Natalya, their three children, his mother-in-law and Mrs. Alberti.

The children, aged 6, 4 and 3, have not reached school age.

A 15-year-old son, by Solzhenitsyn's first marriage, is in a boarding school.

Visitors have been bothersome, but "It's not terrible," Mrs. Alberti said, although she said Solzhenitsyn has received threatening letters.

"We do have people who ring the bell. It's absurd. You would never do it to a doctor or scientist."

Rumors that Solzhenitsyn is "a hater of mankind . . . are extremely unfair and untrue," she said. "And he's asking for is privacy and quiet for his work, now that he has a home."

Solzhenitsyn was imprisoned in Russia for eight years, released in 1953 and exiled in 1974.

He first went to Switzerland, but left after complaining of harassment by Soviet authorities and moved to Cavendish last year.

"It reminds him of Russia," Mrs. Alberti said. "He likes the snow, the clean air, the birds — he loves nature, and doesn't like cities." Solzhenitsyn had visited Vermont before moving here. A friend found the estate for him.

He lives "almost a monastic life ... work, work, work," said Mrs. Alberti. For diversion, she said, Solzhenitsyn "changes the type of work."

Profits from the Nobel Prize winning book "The Gulag Archaepelago" go to the "Russian Social Fund," which has been managed in Russia by Soviet dissident Alexander Ginsburg.

The fund is used to help imprisoned Russian dissidents and their families, and promote research on Russian culture.

A poem, "The Prussian Nights," recently was translated into English for publication. An autobiography, "The Oak and the Calf," is scheduled for publication in English this fall.

Solzhenitsyn attended the town meeting in March. Earlier in the year he visited Montpelier, the state capital.

He said at the town meeting, with Mrs. Alberti interpreting, that he needed solitude for his work and wanted to be a good neighbor.

In Montpelier, he visited several state offices and inquired about how to establish a nonprofit publishing firm. There are no immediate plans to do so.

SOLITUDE FOR SOLZHENITSYN — Visitors to the estate of Nobel Prize winning writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn are viewed from inside the estate by a camera, and most likely turned away at the gate. Solzhenitsyn is too busy writing to accept guests, says his secretary.

Jet sale to Iran nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has tentatively decided against selling 250 F18L fighter planes, worth about $4 billion, to Iran, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

The decision, described by one knowledgeable official as "virtually certain," is a setback for the Northrop Corp., which would have built the lightweight fighter, a land-based version of the Navy's F18.

Iran offered in September to pay the development costs. The plane was viewed by the shah as a replacement for Iran's F4 fighter-bombers.

Disapproval of the deal is in line with the administration's policy against giving other countries weapons that are not used by the U.S. military. The Navy is said to have no current interest in equipping itself with the F18L.

Camping increased by 13 per cent and visitation rose one per cent in Missouri's state parks and historic sites in 1976, according to figures from the Department of Natural Resources, Division o Parks and Camping.

HEAT FATIGUE — The mercury reached 108 with higher temperatures expected in the Arizona desert, but it wasn't the heat that affected this Saguaro cactus: it was old age. State Game and Fish Wildlife assistant John Theobold says the arms are tired after living 300 years. The desert sentinel was photographed south of Casa Grande.

Cosmonauts trained

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has started a training program to send cosmonauts from East bloc nations into space next year.

Candidates from Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany are in Moscow, training alongside Soviet cosmonauts and taking special courses in Russian for outerspace communication.

According to an announcement last September, spacemen from Bulgaria, Hungary, Cuba, Mongolia and Romania will also orbit the earth under the intercosmos program, which will begin sending up international teams.

Mixed groups of astronauts from Western nations will also begin to orbit the earth aboard the U.S. space shuttle some time after 1980, according to Western space experts here.

The European Space Agency is advertising for candidates from Western Europe to join U.S. spacemen in flights that will initially involve two Americans and one European. Later launches may contain as many as four scientists from different countries.

The European Space Agency, an 11-nation group, also is working on modules to be carried into space by the U.S.-built shuttle.

The Soviets do not have a shuttle-type spacecraft, and their international launches are expected to be aboard the one-shot spacecraft that Soviet cosmonauts have been riding.

Both the Soviet and Western programs are forerunners of 21st century space exploration, according to the head of the Soviet cosmonaut training center.

"The future will be characterized by a tendency toward large-scale international cooperation in space research," Maj. Gen. Georgy Beregovoy was quoted by the Tass news agency as saying.

Only the Soviet Union and the United States have the capability of sending a man into space, so the international space flights of the future are likely to continue to be launched on either Soviet or American rockets.

The two space powers themselves plan a joint space shuttle-Soyuz flight some time in the 1980s, and a study is already under way on the setting up of joint working groups to prepare the mission.

To date, the only international manned space flight has been the Apollo-Soyuz mission in the summer of 1975, when Soviet and American spacemen linked up in orbit.

According to press reports here, East Germany has designed small complex equipment to go aboard space capsules, Czechs have been developing small transistors and Hungarians have joined Soviet scientists in studying micrometeorites in outer space.

Poles, Soviets and Czechs are involved in a study of weightlessness; Poles, Romanians, Soviets and Czechs are cooperating in a study of space nourishment, and Bulgarians, Poles and Soviets are studying the strains of space flight.

Cuba has contributed an international cosmonauts' vacation home at Varadero, where the two latest Soviet spacemen have gone for a rest. In an effort to make the cosmonauts feel at home, Tass reported, the main building is shaped like an orbital station, hovering above the ground on concrete supports.

Russia has failed to dismantle Stalinism—Spain's Red leader

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The general secretary of the Spanish Communist party, Santiago Carrillo, accuses the Soviet leadership in a book just out of failing to dismantle Stalinism and of stifling human rights and economic progress.

The publication of "Eurocommunism and the State" coincides with the return to Spain after 40 years' exile in Moscow of the long-time Spanish Communist party president, Dolores Ibarruri, popularly known as "La Pasionaria," who has praised the Soviet Union.

It also coincides with the campaign for Spain's first elections in 41 years on June 15 and for that reason the book is regarded as an attempt by Carrillo to increase the credibility among Spaniards of Eurocommunism as his party goes into the balloting.

Now 83, and Long out of touch with the Spanish party's aims, "La Pasionaria" devoted much of her first campaign speech last month to praising "that great nation, the Soviet Union." She also told reporters that "Eurocommunism does not exist." Communism is the same the world over, she said, differing only in how member states apply it. Communist officials then indicated they would limit appearances by the old-time Communist firebrand.

Carrillo's book gained a wide audience in government offices and among party leaders eager to see how far Carrillo was willing to go in his criticism of the Kremlin. A recent Eurocommunist summit hosted by Carrillo in Madrid did not take Soviet leaders to task on any issue, despite the Spanish leader's reported pressure to do so.

Carrillo's harshest criticism is reserved for "the monstrous aberrations" of Stalinism. He also accuses Stalin's heirs — without naming them — of failing to dismantle Stalin's system.

Passing references to "the great progress made ... in respect to the past" are far outweighed by recitals of Soviet failures.

Lamenting the end of the "sort of spring" of the Khrushchev years, Carrillo comments: "The massive, annihilating repressions of Stalin's" times have disappeared. Khrushchev, deposed, died in his bed. That was some progress ..."

Stalin's power structure, Carrillo charges, "has not changed, has not become democratized and has even retained some of its coercive aspects in relations with Eastern Socialist states ...

"Vital problems like the standard of living and the supplying of the population cannot be considered resolved. Problems of production and participation still stand. The great unresolved question remains — that of democracy and social contradictions and conflicts, which unilateral propaganda hides but does not resolve."

Carrillo also criticizes Moscow's "undervaluing of democracy and human rights," saying: "It is clearly necessary that in established Socialist states, especially those that have reached a certain level of economic developments, criticism should have internal channels of expression and not be repressed by intolerable means. Socialism ... must win back democratic and liberal values, the defense of human rights."

Although the promises of Carrillo's Communists have not had a chance to be put to the test, the party is publically pledged to a parliamentary democracy based on universal suffrage, respect for the polls and complete freedom of expression.

The first Communist leader to denounce the 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia, Carrillo repeatedly reaffirms his total independence from the Soviet Union, acknowledging that many, even within his own party, doubt his assertions that "Eurocommunism must show that the victory of Socialist forces in Western Europe will not increase at all the power of the Soviet State, nor will it imply the extension of the Soviet-model single party."

A full 60 years since the October revolution, Carrillo comments, "we are not yet faced with a state that call itself a workers' democracy.... (The Soviet State) has retained not only elements of bourgeois justice but has arrived at deformations and degenerations that in other times could only be imagined in imperialist states."

Fair's Don Diego aging gracefully

DEL MAR (AP) — The little old ladies love him — "Don't the years just stand still?"

The young women around Tom Hernandez are smiling their prettiest, crowding in for pictures as if he were the most romantic new movie star.

And the boys, including older ones who watched "Zorro" the television series of years ago in which he appeared, are still wide-eyed.

As dashing Don Diego, Spanish-don host of the Southern California Exposition, the ageless Hernandez is in the 30th year of one of the longest-playing actor's role ever.

It's a rerun of history. Ancestors of Hernandez were Spanish settlers near Del Mar. The old family home of the late actor Leo Carrillo, a distant cousin and old friend, is close at hand.

A booking agent sent Hernandez, a native of Tenerif in the Canary Islands, to promote the Del Mar fair in 1947.

"I still love it — I don't really make any money at it, but I love it," he says in an interview.

A widower who weighs the same 178 pounds of 1947 and looks only slighty older, Hernandez is happiest helping pick the "Fairest of the Fair" from among 26 queen candidates picked by hamlets and cities throughout San Diego County. He escorts the winner at dozens of public appearances as he did in 1958 with the winner, Rachel Tejada, helping her into show business as Racquel Welch.

As he did in 1964 with Linda Aylor, who became Miss USA, and in 1951 with Marla English, winning a six-year contract with Paramount Pictures.

They know Hernandez in Hollywood, where he has a home and has appeared in almost 60 films. In Spain and Italy he is a favorite.

Twenty-four major films have displayed him in Europe, where he has appeared mostly as a swashbuckling lover.

Today Hernandez is a well paid actor in Spanish and Italian commercials. As a young man he acted in the pre-war New York World's Fair and in a long run in the Broadway cast of "Hellzapoppin" before spending five years in the Army.

In 1953, he danced the samba with Lana Turner in "Latin Lovers." Character roles were common in such TV series as "Wagon Train," "Death Valley Days" and Laramie."

In 1966, his wife died. Their sons, Greg and Alan, are Paris lawyers.

Time has thinned the hair, showing a little gray, but publicity photographs reveal Hernandez as a live ringer for Don Diego of 1947.

Three times a day during the fair which opens June 21, he changes in the $10,000 wardrobe which was tailored in Spain.

No hairpieces, no girdles, no artificial teeth or plastic surgery keep Don Diego intact.

The adoring women don't believe it, they say, but want to.

"I've got to run a comb through my hair for them all the time to prove it's real," says Hernandez.

"A long time ago, I decided I wasn't going to be a little old man, and I don't intend to grow old gracefully or any other way."

He declines to say how long ago that was.

Ryan strikes out 19 but can't get win

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Thursday, June 9, 1977

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — Nolan Ryan was spectacular Wednesday night in striking out 19 Toronto Blue Jays in 10 innings of work but he couldn't record a big W to his record.

But at least he didn't get a L either as the Angels did pull it out, 2-1, thanks to Bobby Grich's 13th-inning home run to end the marathon pitching duel.

Both starters were brilliant.

While Ryan was mowing down the Blue Jays, Toronto righthander Jesse Jefferson came within one out of recording the first shutout ever for the American League expansion club.

Both Ryan and Jefferson were working on no-hitters through five innings. Doug Ault snapped Ryan's bid with a single with one out in the top of the sixth while Rusty Torres finished Jefferson's gem with two outs in the bottom half of the inning.

In contrast to his last start against Detroit Saturday, Ryan showed good control Wednesday in not walking a batter until the eighth when Toronto scored its only run.

"That's the best I have ever seen Nolan pitch," said Angels' manager Norm Sherry. "It was as easy as he's ever thrown. That's the way Sandy Koufax used to pitch - nice and easy."

Ryan struck out 18 Jays during the regulation nine innings and added pinch-hitter Ernie Whitt for the 19th victim in the 10th.

Many Anaheim Stadium fans were hoping Ryan would keep going in the 11th inning in hopes of seeing him surpass the major league record of 21 set by Washington's Tom Cheney in 1962 in an 16-inning marathon.

But Sherry took his ace righthander out of the game after the 10th frame.

Sherry said he told Ryan, "You've thrown 171 pitches. You're starting Sunday. It's a long season."

As it was, Ryan equaled his career high of 19 and turned the trick of fanning 18 in nine innings for only the 10th time in major league history. It was Ryan's third 18-strikeout performance.

Toronto's only run was an unearned tally caused by Ryan himself. Catcher Alan Ashby opened the eighth with a walk and Ault followed with a single. Dave McKay tried to bunt the runners over as Ryan picked up the ball and tried to nail Ashby at third base only to throw past Dave Chalk to let Ashby score.

Ryan got out of the inning without additional damage by striking out Roy Howell and Otto Velez - a four-time victim - with the bases full. But it looked like Nolan would be an 1-0 loser.

Jefferson (3-4) had allowed only one Angel as far as second base until the ninth and appeared in great shape with two outs in the bottom half of the ninth and Grich at first base with a walk.

Don Baylor kept the Halos alive with a single and Bobby Bonds' tagged Jefferson's first pitch for a line drive hit to score Grich with the tying run.

Grich then ended it by leading off the 13th against reliever Tom Bruno with his seventh home run of the season on a drive which just cleared the leftfield fence.

"The guys in the bullpen were sucking it in and the guys in the dugout were blowing out," Grich said about the homer. "I guess it only made it by a foot."

Grich talked about Ryan's performance.

"He makes a shortstop feel like a spectator," he said. "When he pitches, I feel I should pay my way into the park. I get maybe one ground ball a game. He's awesome. I've played behind some pretty good pitchers at Baltimore but nobody throws the ball like him."

ANGEL ANGLES — After a night off, the Angels will host the Cleveland Indians for a three-game weekend series. Pitching match-ups are: Friday - Frank Tanana (9-2) vs. Wayne Garland (2-5), Saturday - Gary Ross (2-3) vs. Jim Bibby (4-3) and Sunday - Ryan (8-5) vs. Dennis Eckersley (6-3).

Gil Flores was scratched from the starting lineup because of a tender right elbow and Jerry Remy couldn't play second base because of a sore ankle.

TACKLED FOR LOSS

Dodgers' Reggie Smith (bottom) is tackled by teammates Dusty Baker and Steve Yeager in third inning of Wednesday game against the Cubs in Chicago. Smith had to be restrained when he went after a fan in the stands who had angered him with insults. Fan was removed.

Umps, not Cubs, KO Sutton

CHICAGO (AP) — What the Chicago Cubs could not do with their bats, the umpires managed to accomplish with a simple question. They knocked Don Sutton out of the game.

The veteran Los Angeles righthander had handcuffed the Cubs on three singles through 7 1-3 innings Wednesday en route to a 4-2 Dodgers victory.

But with a runner on first, Chicago's Bill Buckner asked the umpires to check the ball for scuff marks. They found none. Third base umpire Dick Stello said he then spotted Sutton rubbing the ball on the ground, and asked to look at it. That started the fireworks and the ball flying. It ended with Sutton's ejection.

"He threw a bullet at my feet," said Stello. "I said that'll be $100."

Sutton said the first time he was checked in the eighth, home plate umpire Bruce Froemming "came out and gave me a shakedown like a common criminal and found nothing and went back behind the plate."

The second time was one time too many for Sutton, who in the past has been accused of doctoring the ball.

"I regret short-hopping the ball to the umpire," he said. "What I was going to do out of frustration was throw the ball hard over to him but I changed my mind in the middle of my delivery ... then Bruce came out of the wild, wild west."

Froemming said he ejected Sutton because he used profanity in telling him to return to the plate. Sutton issued a qualified denial.

"I did not use profanity, unless you consider jackass profanity," he said.

"I've never heard Sutton use a dirty word," said Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda. "I didn't think he was warranted to be thrown out. He was pitching a heck of a ball game and all of a sudden he looks up and he's in the clubhouse."

The Dodgers were leading 4-0 at the time, and reliever Charlie Hough was greeted by Buckner with a double. Bobby Murcer then grounded out, driving in Larry Biittner, who had singled, and Jerry Morales singled home Buckner. Hough then struck out Manny Trillo and retired the Cubs in order in the ninth.

Chicago starter Mike Krukow, 5-4, gave up three runs in the first inning on three hits, a walk, a wild pitch and an error.

With one out in the bottom of the fourth and the Cubs hitless, the game was delayed 54 minutes by rain. When it resumed, Sutton retired the first batter, then gave up infield singles to Murcer and Trillo and a walk to Morales. But Dave Rosello lined to first for the third out.

Sutton now is 7-2 after his fifth straight victory over the Cubs. Krukow's arm tightened during the delay and he was replaced by Donnie Moore, who pitched three shutout innings. The Dodgers got their final run in the eighth off Paul Reuschel on Reggie Smith's 14th homer of the season.

Crash mars RIR practice

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Mike Walsh of Carson City, Nev., crashed and destroyed his 1969 Chevelle Wednesday as practice opened for three stock car races to be held at Riverside International Raceway this weekend.

Walsh crashed the car, built by Nevada State Prison inmates, through a retaining wall at about 100 miles per hour, officials said. He was not injured.

Meanwhile, Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills, Calif., was clocked at an average speed of 114.281 m.p.h. in a modified 1976 Camaro.

Insolo has vowed to break Parnelli Jones' 1970 record of 113.310 m.p.h. on Riverside's 2.62-mile course. Jones' mark, set in a Mercury, was recorded before NASCAR changed engine rules and effectively slowed down all racing stock cars.

Insolo will get a chance to officially break the record when he qualifies for the Black Gold 200 in the same car Thursday.

Drivers entered in the main event, the $139,000 NAPA Riverside 400 NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National on Sunday, will start practice runs Thursday and begin qualifying Friday.

Singer placed on disabled list

ANAHEIM — Former Pomona High star Bill Singer has been placed on the 21-day disabled list by the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Blue Jays made room on their 25-man roster for newly acquired third baseman Doug Rader by placing Singer, a veteran righthanded pitcher, on the list.

"Bill won't even be able to throw for 10 days, and it will be another week or so before he can even think of pitching after taking treatment on his arm," a spokesman for the American League team said Wednesday.

Singer has consulted the Angels' team doctor concerning the continuing problem he's had with his throwing arm this season.

Rader, 32, was sold by the Padres to the Blue Jays.

Two Valley girls earn All-CIF recognition

Two valley girls have won All-CIF honors for their athletic prowess this spring.

Upland High's Kari Gosswiller was tabbed to the CIF's All-Southern California Track & Field Team as a high jumper. She won that event at the CIF State Meet last week at UCLA.

Walnut High's Diane Johnson made the CIF's All-Southern California Aquatics Team as a 200-yard individual medley swimmer. Johnson won that event in the CIF Southern Section finals.

Tabbed by the CIF as co-Athletes of the Year in girls track were sprinter Jeanette Bolden of Centennial and hurdler Lisa Gourdine of El Toro.

Selected as CIF Swimmer of the Year was Jill Sterkel of Wilson High in Hacienda Heights. Picked as Diver of the Year was Nancy Brunet of Royal High in Simi.

Gosswiller, Johnson and the rest of the track and swim teams will be honored at a awards program at Magic Mountain Saturday morning.

Vallone drafted by Angels

The primary and secondary phases of major league baseball's annual June draft ended Wednesday, with a flurry of former local junior college stars being selected.

However, no area high school players were tabbed in Wednesday's draft, as the 26 major league teams went through 11 more rounds in the primary phase and seven rounds of secondary drafting.

Perhaps the top surprise locally in Wednesday's selections was the tabbing, by the California Angels, of La Verne College southpaw Jim Vallone in the 24th and final round.

Vallone, a former Glendora High and Mt. San Antonio College hurler, was a two-year standout on the mound for the Leos, but was not considered to be a pro prospect by most scouts due to his lack of an outstanding fastball.

However, the Angels decided that Vallone just might be another Randy Jones type, and took a chance on the Leo lefty.

Vallone was one of four former Mounties who were picked in Wednesday's action.

Former Mountie outfielder Ron Roenicke, now at UCLA, was a first-round selection of the Dodgers in the secondary phase. Other ex-Mounties tabbed were infielder Javier Fierro (14th round of the primary phase by the Chicago Cubs) and outfielder Gary Adair (15th round by the Minnesota Twins). Fierro and Adair are currently members of the Cal State Los Angeles baseball squad.

Chaffey College hurler Mike Walters was also a first round pick in the secondary phase, as the tall righthander from Alta Loma was selected by the Angels.

Also picked in Wednesday's drafting were two former Citrus College players. First baseman Dave Hostetler, now at USC, went to the Giants on the second round of the secondary phase, while hurler Eric Mustad, now at Cal State Fullerton, was picked by the Padres in the 15th round of the primary phase.

Davila, Duarte clash tonight at Olympic

LOS ANGELES — World bantamweight title contenders Alberto Davila of Pomona and Frankie Duarte of Santa Monica clash tonight here at the Olympic Auditorium in a 12-round elimination match as part of a top-notch boxing card.

A special added 10-round main event has ex-world featherweight champion Bobby Chacon meeting El Paso's Miguel Estrada.

Davila, 22-4 with seven knockouts, beat two leading contenders last year, Cubanito Hernandez and Lupe Pintor, and is currently ranked fifth in the world by the World Boxing Council.

The 22-year Pomona resident beat Carlos Alcivar in 10 rounds in his last Olympic appearance a month ago.

Duarte, 28-2 with 22 knockouts, is ranked 10th in the world. He has won his last 10 fights, eight of them by knockouts.

The odds on the fight, which has been sanctioned by the WBC, are even.

Tonight's Olympic card gets underway at 8 p.m. The Chacon-Estrada match will follow the Davila-Duarte bout, which is expected to get underway about 9 p.m.

Wilkins expects top discus effort

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World record-holder Mac Wilkins, who hasn't been performing up to his capabilities in the discus this year, hopes all that will change in the National Track and Field Championships at UCLA beginning today.

Wilkins, who won the gold medal at last summer's Olympic Games in Montreal, will duel silver medalist John Powell.

Finals will be spread out over the three days of the AAU championships and Wilkins, last year's Athlete of the Meet, said he hopes there will be a big crowd on hand at Drake Stadium Friday for the discus finals.

Wilkins, who threw 230 feet in the Nationals at UCLA last year and holds the world record of 232-6, said, "The crowd last year seemed to really focus on the discus. I think it was the best discus crowd I've seen in the U.S. If they're like that again this time, I might get fired up and bounce a few off the fences."

He hasn't exactly been bouncing the discus off fences so far this year. His best throw of 1977 is 218-8, and he has lost twice to Powell. "But," Wilkins said with a smile, "I haven't been throwing what I'm capable of. John has."

One of the finest fields ever assembled for an AAU meet will be on hand for these championships.

World record-holder Dwight Stones will face an outstanding group of competitors in the high jump, and Earl Bell, Mike Tully and Dan Ripley will square off in the pole vault.

The 100-meter dash is expected to be one of the top running events, with such entries as Harvey Glance, Hasely Crawford and Johnny Jones. However, Houston McTear, who beat many of the same people entered here in the recent Muhammad Ali Invitational, has decided not to compete.

The 1500 meters will feature a pair of Kenyans, Wilson Waigwa and Mike Boit, and the best U.S. runner in the event, California-Irvine's Steve Scott. The field for the 5000 meters includes Frank Shorter, Marty Liquori and Garry Bjorklund.

Among the featured events for the women are the 800 and 1500 meters. Both will pit Francie Larrieu, a double winner in the AAU indoor meet, against Northridge State's versatile Julie Brown.

There should be no lack of motivation for competitors in all events since winners will represent the U.S. in the inaugural World Cup competition.

The International Amateur Athletic Federation-sponsored meet scheduled for Dusseldorf, West Germany, next Septemer is seen as a world championship affair to be staged in nonOlympic years.

The U.S. team for the European tour and the Pacific Conference Games in Australia will also be chosen on the basis of performances in the AAU Nationals.

Ontario girl top bowler

PAMELA DUSEK

Ontario resident Pamela Dusek has been named Southern California Junior Bowler of the Year for 1977.

She was honored recently at the 25th annual Southern California Bowling Writers Awards Banquet at the Sportsmen's Lodge in Los Angeles.

Dusek, 22, is a graduate of Chaffey High and Chaffey College and is now majoring in mathematics at UC Riverside, where she is a junior.

She began bowling at the age of 9 and became serious about it — which means practicing daily at Garey Center Bowl in Pomona — four years ago.

"I like the sport and people say competing makes you a better person," Dusek said. "I want to be a high school teacher, but I hope to keep bowling part-time during summers."

Dusek, who boasts a 190 average, a 266 high game and 743 best series as well as numerous tournament wins, plans to join the Western Women's Professional Bowling Association in August.

That organization holds weekend tournaments in cities throughout the western states.

"The purses for those tournaments are $8,000 to $10,000, with $1,000 to $2,000 for the winner," said Dusek. "It's nothing like the big tournaments for touring pros that you see on TV."

Dusek said she has no desire to be a fulltime touring pro.

"I don't want to make my living as a professional bowler," she said. "I'd like to earn some extra income bowling but I want to make my living as a teacher.

"If I made my living bowling and broke my arm or my leg I'd be stuck. I'd rather have a regular income."

Dusek, who works fulltime at Doughboy Recreations in Cucamonga besides going to school at night and bowling an hour or two a day, will participate in just two more amateur tournaments before turning pro. She'll bowl in the Pacific Coast Tournament in San Francisco the weekend of July 4 and the Hawaiian Invitational later in July.

La Verne posts District 18 win

La Verne Post 330 evened its District 18 American Legion league mark at 1-1 Wednesday with an 8-4 decision over host Rowland Heights Legion.

In another District 18 contest Wednesday, Arcadia Post 247 outslugged Claremont Post 78 16-13 in a game played at Claremont High.

Post 330 hurlers Richard Bustos and David Drury combined to limit Rowland to only four hits. However, it took a key single by Drury with the bases loaded in the top of the seventh to help La Verne to a four-run rally and the ballgame.

La Verne is now 7-2 on the season.

Ron Pickenpaugh continued his rampage with the bat for Post 330. The first sacker belted two doubles in the contest and has now hit over .500 (17-for-33) in his last seven Legion outings, with five homers and 16 RBIs.

Steve Campbell chipped in with three hits for La Verne, while Pete Fox had two hits and two RBIs.

Claremont dropped its District opener to Arcadia despite a game comeback try by the Cardinals. Post 78 is now 6-8-1 on the year.

Arcadia built up a 16-5 lead after six and one-half innings in the contest, but Claremont clawed to within three before the visitors could nail down the win.

Dick Bell was 4-for-6 for the Cards, with two runs scored and two RBIs. Dan Healey had three hits for Claremont.

La Verne will be back in action tonight with a non-league encounter with Anaheim slated for a 7 p.m. start at La Verne College. Pomona Post 30 will also be in action tonight at Ralph Welch Park, vs. the Fullerton Angels Legion nine. That contest will start at 7:30 p.m.

Claremont will not return to diamond wars until Saturday, when the Cards will host Baldwin Park Post 241 in a 2 p.m. contest at Pomona College.

Cruguet not after glory

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Cruguet, who has ridden top horses on both sides of the Atlantic but who has ridden in a shadow in the area of public attention, says he is not concerned about any celebrity status he might achieve because of Seattle Slew.

"Ten years ago maybe," the Frenchman said Wednesday morning at Belmont Park, the site of Seattle Slew's bid for the Triple Crown which will come Saturday in the Belmont Stakes.

"When you're 20 you look for the glory. When you're past 30 you forget the glory. You like it but you look for the bank."

But should Seattle Slew become the first unbeaten Triple Crown champion, a feat he is a strong favorite to accomplish, then Cruguet automatically will be racing's man of the hour.

The Slew was to be entered today along with an expected six opponents including Run Dusty Run, second in the Kentucky Derby and third in the Preakness; Sanhedrin, third in the Preakness, and Iron Constitution, second in the Preakness, for the $150,000-added Belmont which will go off at 2:38 p.m. PDT.

The CBS telecast of the 109th running of the 1½-mile classic will be from 2-3 p.m.

Cruguet, who has been aboard Seattle Slew for all eight of his victories, has known major disappointments in his career.

In 1971 he was headed for the Derby as the rider of Hoist the Flag, the early favorite to win that famed race. But while working out for the Gotham Stakes, a Derby prep, Hoist the Flag broke a leg and never raced again, although he was saved for stud.

In 1972 Cruguet was riding San San, a top 3-year-old French filly who was headed for the renwed Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe. A week before the Arc, Cruguet was injured in a spill involving another horse and had to watch as the filly won the Arc.

And even in this year of success, Cruguet has been hard hit by criticism from various quarters for his handling of Seattle Slew. But that criticism in recent weeks has tailed off to a whisper.

Throughout the pressure of the Triple Crown, Cruguet has kept his poise and his confidence in Seattle Slew and himself.

"No horse worries me," he said about Slew's Belmont competition, while freely admitting that he's glad Cormorant will not run in the race. His reasoning is that while Cormorant would not beat Seattle Slew he could force him to run a harder race than Slew's camp would like.

In the Preakness Cormorant pushed Seattle Slew to the fastest mile in Preakness history, 3:34 4-5. The Slew finished the 3 3-16 miles in 1:54 2-5 while Cormorant faded to fourth.

Cruguet does not feel that Seattle Slew will approach Secretariat's Belmont record of 2:24 for the 1½ miles. Trainer Billy Turner noted that the track will not be super fast as it was in 1973.

FAMOUS RIVALRY — Friendly rivals Richard Petty (43) and Buddy Baker (15) will meet again Sunday at the NAPA Riverside 400 at the Riverside International Raceway.

Riverside expects largest field ever

RIVERSIDE — The largest combined field of stock cars ever seen at Riverside International Raceway has converged on this internationally famed road course this week, as speed runs begin for the NAPA Riverside 400 Weekend of Speed.

Three races offering combined prize money of more than $170,000 have attracted not only Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough, David Pearson and the top talent of the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National circuit but also the best drivers in the West — a total of more than 120 as of the preceding weekend, and the list was still growing.

Featured on Sunday is the NAPA Riverside 400-kilometer Winston Cup Grand National road race, 14th stop on NASCAR's $4 million stock car racing circuit. However, much of the excitement for fans has been generated by the two other companion events.

They are the inaugural Black Gold 200 for NASCAR modified stock cars on Saturday and Black Gold's California 150 for NASCAR sportsman stock cars on Sunday. To take in all three races, spectators are being permitted to park overnight on the Raceway grounds Saturday.

The modified race features West Coast champion Jim Sanderson of Las Vegas, plus Ivan (The Terrible) Baldwin of Modesto, Sonny Easley of Van Nuys, Hershel McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore., Jimmy Insolo of Mission Hills and Joe Ruttman of Upland — younger brother of Troy Ruttman.

Baldwin will defend his title in the California 150 against such talent as NASCAR Winston West Grand National champion Chuck Bown of Tacoma, Wash., former Permatex 300 winner Jim Walker of Ferndale and Richard White of Escondido.

Sportsman and modified qualifying began Wednesday. Qualifying for all three races starts Friday. Tickets remain on sale at all Ticketron and Liberty-Wallichs outlets and at the Raceway (714) 653-1161.

Graves wins Owl honors

Football star Obie Graves received the Citrus College Athlete of the Year trophy recently at the school's annual spring sports banquet.

Graves, the Mission Conference MVP and rushing leader, paced the Owls to a 9-1 season and a victory over Santa Barbara CC in the Mission Bowl. Graves has transferred to Cal State Fullerton along with Owl quarterback Dale Bunn.

Parry Kleinsasser and Steve Boe were the MVPs for the track team. Other track awardees were Leonard Loyd, most improved; Kelly Johnson, best freshman; John Gonzales, coaches award; and Kleinsasser and Glen Wright, team captains.

Hank Ritchey was selected as the baseball team's MVP. Andy Varela and Jay Schellin, most improved; Randy Dunham, most inspirational; Frank Alonzo, best freshman and Brad Ducich and Doug Goodman, team captains rounded out the baseball awards.

Robinson saluted

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced plans Wednesday for a week-long salute by organized baseball to the late Jackie Robinson.

Robinson, who 30 years ago became the first black to reach the major leagues, will be honored with special ceremonies planned for the week of July 1825 and centering around the All-Star Game at Yankee Stadium, Tuesday, July 19.

Robinson played for the brooklyn Dodgers from 1947 until his retirement in 1956 and compiled a lifetime .311 batting average. He was elected to the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibilty—one of only eight players to achieve that distinction.

The capacity of the Seattle Kingdome is 59,095 for baseball games but rises to 65,000 for football contests.

Pitchers dominate local B.L. action

Pitching was very much a factor in District 20 Big League baseball action Wednesday night.

Pomona American nipped La Verne 2-1 and Glendora South Hills edged Pomona National 3-2 in two games which featured top-notch hurling efforts on both sides.

American's Jim Stedronsky limited La Verne to only six hits, fanned five and walked but two. The win for American upped its record to 5-4 in District 20 action.

For La Verne, Ricky Beltran hurled a three-hitter, and fanned 11, but it was not enough as three La Verne errors allowed an unearned run to American and that proved to be the difference in the game. La Verne is now 5-4 in district outings.

La Verne's Mike Raffee had two hits in the contest and drove in the lone L.V. tally. No one else had more than one safety.

Glendora's Eddie Salas fanned nine Pomona National batters to keep his team in first place in the District 20 standings. Glendora South Hills is now 6-1 on the year.

Pomona National's Chris Andrews dropped his first game of the year after having posted three straight wins on the hill. Andrews fanned seven and allowed no earned runs, but a National error in the top of the first paved the way for a three-run inning for Glendora and the ballgame.

National is now 5-4 on the year.

District 20 Big League action will resume Saturday, with doubleheaders on tap for the loop's eight teams.

NORTHERN IRELAND'S SPECIAL GIFT TO SOCCER . . . George Best continues to hand out exciting morsels of play for those who make the journey to the Coliseum. He was up to his old tricks again last Sunday, dominating the action both as an individual and as a playmaker, in plastering an important defeat on the challenging Dallas Tornado.

Reading Best well was Churning Charlie Cooke, Chelsea's choice midfielder who knows when and where to go when George gets hold of the ball. Cooke, a Scottish internationalist in his own right, pulled a couple gems himself and his workhorse attitude has greatly aided the Aztecs in their move to first place in their NASL Division.

Still a thorn in the Aztec hide are the Las Vegas Quicksilvers who will drop out of the sky this Sunday to take on the leaders. Heading the Quicksilver contingent is the famous Eusebio who carried Benfica to world club titles in the mid-Sixties. Hailing from Mozambique and speaking Portuguese, Eusebio was a natural for the capitol city's Benfica team. His four goals against North Korea in the 1966 World Cup remains one of the great highlights of World Cup history. Eusebio ignited after the Koreans had scored three goals. If his recent instep surgery has assisted we can expect to see an exciting Eusebio game on the Coliseum turf.

The Vegas club has played more games to date than any NASI club and despite that susceptibility they are the least-scored upon team in the NASL. Their acquisition of Portuguese star Abel last week and release of Trevor Hockey to San Jose should further strengthen a defense that is the league's best. Can the league's stingiest defense contain the league's highest scoring team? That is the story you can see Sunday at 2 at the Coliseum . . . Eusebio and amigos vs. Best and mates.

IN AMERICAN LEAGUE PLAY the Skyhawks of Van Nuys won an important game from the visiting New England Oceaneers in a 4-3 splurge before 4,000 fans at Birmingham Stadium in the Valley. The high-scoring victory puts the Skies just four points under the leading Sacramento Spirits.

FAMOUS LIVERPOOL BACK RON YATES and his Santa Barbara Condors will host the Skyhawks Saturday nite at Santa Barbara. It was Yates who center-backed several championship Liverpool teams and also led the Skyhawks to the ASL title last season before taking on the player-coach job at Santa Barbara.

THE SANTA ANA-BASED CALIFORNIA SUNSHINE will take on the New England Oceaneers Friday at 8, and next Wednesday night entertain the Spirits of Sacramento. Sunshine coach Derek Lawther is making a few changes in an effort to tighten up the loosest defense in the ASL. If Belfast Derek could find a way to get his Northern Ireland cohort George Best over to Santa Ana he would be halfway to where he wants to go . . . which is saying a strong offense is the best defense.

The next NASL TV exposure won't be till June 19 when the Aztecs oppose the 1976 runner-up Minnesota Kicks but locally we have channel 34 on Saturdays at 3 showing the South American World Cup games; and channel 28 with British Star Soccer at 5; the Sunday morning Mexican games over channel 34 and German soccer Thursday on 22. BUENOS AIRES FANS are being favored with some of the world's best soccer this spring (autumn down there) having already seen their World Cup team defeat dangerous Poland last week, and just a few days ago the Argentines dropped one to West Germany. The Germans used only four players from the 1974 World Championship squad and it was one of the few times in the last 110 games they were without their leader Franz Beckenbauer.

The great Beckenbauer departed West Germany last month to sign a four year contract with the Cosmos. In Beckenbauer's own words he said "I've lived my 31 years in Munich and I am happy to be in this beautiful country and to have the pleasure of playing with Pele who is the greatest player I have ever seen, and Giorgio Chinaglia who is the most famous in Europe, and my friend Ramon Miflin who I played against in World Cup Mexico in 1970 when he played for Peru." Beckenbauer had played 103 times for West Germany.

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN ITS HISTORY the U.S. Olympic squad is planning well ahead. The usual pattern has been to hold regional tryouts a few months before the Olympics and the selected players would meet each other en route to the games much as our World Cup teams have done. For instance, the 1950 World Cup squad were introduced to each other 16 days before they met England in Brazil and it has been the same with the Olympic team through the years.

We have been eliminated from the 1978 World Cup but our Olympic team for the 1980 games has already had some competitive games against Holland's Olympic selection and just last week our players were in training (and tryout) up at Squaw Valley which has been officially designated as the USA Olympic training site. Our boys will be taking part in a pre-Olympic international tourney for the first time when they journey to Rijeka, Yugoslavia to compete against 32 teams from 24 different countries.

The tournament is an annual but it will be the first time a USA team has entered. This particular competition is limited to players born in 1957 or later but when they hit the actual Olympic competition they will be facing full fledged pros from the Iron Curtain countries . . . a condition which has restricted Olympic soccer titles to European Iron Curtain countries since 1952. All other countries go by the book and use only amateur players.

Only two west coast players have been named..Dan Salvemini of UC Berkeley and our own Rick Davis who came up via Claremont AYSO leagues and Damien High where he was selected as a national high school player. Rick is now in his second year with Santa Clara University where he plays with former Damien mates.

Olympic/World Cup Coach Walt Chyzowych says further Olympic tryouts will be held at Squaw Valley July 10-16, and July 17-23. There were 18 players selected from some 60 applicants last week. He'll look at all who get themselves there who comply with the 1957 or later birth requirement. Squaw Valley is just east of Lake Tahoe . . . a little under 500 miles from the L.A. area. If you're interested, try dropping a letter to Walt Chyzowych, c/o USSF, 350 Fifth Ave., Suite 4010, NY, NY 10001, or phone No. 212: 736-0915 or 0916 or 0917.

THERE WILL BE AT LEAST a half-dozen European soccer powers testing their World Cup teams in South American tours this summer. Hungary has already toured and Poland and West Germany are currently there. Still coming is East Germany, England and Scotland who will be feeling out the climate and other conditions and hopefully get a line on the opposition in Argentina and Brazil. This is the period the coaches use many newcomers in an effort both to discover new talent and also to keep the opposition from seeing what they really have. A cat-and-mouse game at this stage.

LIVERPOOL'S SENSATIONAL VICTORY over Gladbach for the League Champs' European Cup in Rome was a tonic for the Liverpudlians who didn't rejoice earlier that week when the English champs fell before rivals Manchester United in the F.A. Cup Final. Actually Liverpool looked better than United but they only count goals, as you know. Had Liverpool won the F.A. Cup they would have set an impossible record for teams to shoot at . . . having already won the League (2nd time in a row and 10 times altogether). A league title and the European Cup isn't bad but they had their eyes on the impossible treble!

Liverpool's major star Kevin Keegan has signed with Eintracht Braunschweig of the German Bundesliga after months of negotiation with Real Madrid.

Diablos will open against Minnesota

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Topranked Arizona State and Minnesota should be tabbed as the co-favorites when the 31st annual College World Series opens Friday night with a doubleheader.

But upstart California StateLos Angeles likely will be the fans' choice in the eight-team, double-elimination tournament to decide the champion of major college baseball.

"This is the loosest club in the world," said rookie CSLA Coach Jack Deutsch, 59. "Pressure? They don't know what that means. Until the game starts I feel sometimes like I'm in charge of a bunch of comedians."

West Coast power Southern Cal is not laughing.

The Diablos, dubbed the "East L.A. Raggamuffins" in regional play, lost their opening qualifying game but took four straight, including coming from behind twice in late innings to eliminate favored USC.

"I felt when I took over there was good talent," said Deutsch, a volunteer assistant coach for eight years before taking over this season.

"If we could generate some enthusiasm and confidence, I thought maybe it would spread like a good case of the measles — and we'd win a few ball games.

"But the College World Series? No, I never dreamed this would happen. Frankly, I'm as excited about all this as the players."'

Southern Illinois, 38-10, battles Temple, 34-7, and Arizona State, 52-11, tangles with Clemson, 41-7, in opening round games Friday night.

After an afternoon elimination-round game, Cal State Los Angeles, 40-20, tests Minnesota, 38-10, and Baylor, 43-13, meets South Carolina, 40-10, in the concluding first-round games Saturday night.

Arizona State, No. 1-rated in the final poll of the season by College Baseball Newspaper, and Big Ten Conference titlist Minnesota are seeking a fourth championship.

A power almost every year since it started its program in 1959, Arizona State has qualified for the series five times in the last seven years but has met with disappointment.

On three of those trips the Sun Devils were rated No. 1. Twice Southern Cal beat them in title games, and in the last two years ASU was a disappointing third.

Veteran Coach Dick Siebert has Minnesota back for a fifth time. The Gophers were third in 1973 in their last trip.

Led by first-round draft choice Paul Molitor, Minnesota — like Arizona State, Southern Illinois and Temple — gained the series by sweeping its regional. The Gophers have won 19 of their last 20 games.

Arizona State has won 18 straight and as a team is batting .340. Rick Peters (.389), Chris Bando (.385), Bob Horner (.383) and Mike Henderson (.376) power the attack. Bando is the younger brother of Milwaukee Brewer third baseman Sal Bando.

Outfielder Darrell Brown, a .395 hitter with 11 home runs, 46 RBIs and 43 stolen bases, has been the sparkplug of Cal State-Los Angeles.

The series runs through June 16 — if an unbeaten team is the champion — or June 17 if it goes the full 15 games.

The showdown between league leaders VFW and DAV turned out to be as close as advertised. DAV emerged with a 3-2 victory behind the four-hit pitching of Shane Turner, who gave up only three walks. Opposing pitcher David Busby allowed five hits, while striking out eight. Johnny Rodriguez and Stanley Conley of DAV each connected for run scoring doubles. Teammate Robert Martinez got a hit and scored a run in his only appearance at the plate. Scott Andry scored both VFW runs, being driven in once each by Ruben Parada and Chris Ayala. There were no errors committed in the game, which lasted only one hour and 40 minutes.

The second game was an eight inning affair which DAV won by a 4-3 score. DAV's Johnny Rodriguez and VFW's Scott Andry dueled the entire game, which was even in most categories. Each pitcher allowed only five hits. The score was knotted 2-2 at the end of seven innings. DAV went ahead in their half of the eighth when Johnny Rodriguez singled, stole second, and was driven in by Eddie Ortega's booming triple to center field. Ortega later scored on an error. VFW rallied for one run to make the final score 4-3. VFW's Joey DeLeon also hit a triple to complete a two-for-four day at the plate.

Taco Rita took a pair from Post 30 to windup in a tie for second place with VFW, in the first game, Post 30 managed to score nine runs on only two hits. Taco Rita had a 7-6 lead at the end of three innings. Post 30 tied it up in the fourth. Taco Rita came back with one in the fifth when Avelino Sanchez hit a triple to score Orby Arambula. Post 30 responded with two runs in the sixth, when Art Ursua singled and Robert Vincent drove him in with a triple. Vincent scored on an overthrow, making the score 9-8. Taco Rita tied it up again with a run in their half of the sixth. Taco Rita clinched the game in the bottom of the seventh when Sanchez tripled again, and scored the winning run on Brent Hollier's single. Hollier had a good day, going three for four. Ron Elias had a double, and Arambula was two for three. Winning pitcher was Alex Maldonado, in six innings of relief.

The second game was similar, with Post 30 having the early advantage. The teams were deadlocked 8-8 at the end of four innings. Mike Luna's single drove in Post 30's go ahead run in the bottom of the fifth. Taco Rita started off the seventh with four consecutive base hits, scoring four runs which resulted in the final 12-9 win. Taco Rita collected 17 hits in the contest. Phillip Rodriguez was two for three with three RBI's. Gilbert Ramos was two for two, while teammate Alex Maldonado was three for four. Avelino Sanchez was the winning pitcher, allowing five scattered singles in six innings of relief.

Highlights

Darryl Ewell's hitting (3 for 4) paved the way as Pneudraulics beat Montclair Bronze, 13-6. Darin Ewell and Roger Price combined to notch the victory, striking out 10 enroute. Jason Shewalter solved Ewell and Price, however, as he had four hits in four trips to the plate.

Bruce Allyn Plumbing rolled over Optimist's, 16-1 in a game delayed by smog. Jeff Dahlstrom slammed his ninth homer, Timmy Alberico and Eric Richardson both were three for three, and Ricky Rhinehart added a pair of hits to lead the Plumber's 13-hit attack.

Danny Dayton (3 for 4) and Andre Swan (2 for 3) lead Lloyd's over Pizza Palace, 12-9. Steve Whitney had 3 hits in 4 at-bats for Pizza Palace.

Mr. Dryclean's pitching corps of Donnie Wallace and Ronnie Molina combined to toss a three-hit shutout, accumulating 15 strikeouts along the way as the Cleaners bested Bumstead's, 16-0. Wallace (four for four), Danny Lopez (four for four, including three homers), and Gene Wade (three for four) lead the hitting attack. Pitchers Robert Valenzuela and Gavin Garcia combined to strike out 12 in their losing cause.

Optimist's romped over Montclair Bronze, 15-2 as Calvin Myers and Kenny Lopez combined to strike out 12 while allowing only three hits. Timmy Padilla (4 for 4) and Myers (2 for 2) lead Optimist's in hitting.

Lloyd's and Mr. Dryclean hooked up in what may have been the best game of the year as Lloyd's jumped out to an early, 2-0 lead which lasted until the bottom of the sixth inning when Mr. Dryclean's Danny Lopez unloaded his 11th homer with a man aboard to knot the score and force the game into extra innings. Lloyd's didn't wait long to settle things though, as they came up with four runs in the seventh inning to wrap up the win, 6-2.

Bumstead's and Pizza Palace hooked up in a high scoring affair, and when the dust settled, Bumstead's prevailed, 11-10. Jeff Dahlstrom limited Pneudraulics to just two hits as he struck out 15 in Bruce Allyn Plumbing's 13-1 victory over Pneudraulics. Bobby Valdez started things off for Bruce Allyn with a first inning grand slammer and received help from Dahlstrom, Timmy Alberico, and brother Mike Valdez as each chipped in with two hits.

Jets sign Joe Klecko

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets said Wednesday they have signed defensive tackle Joe Klecko of Temple, their sixth-round pick in the National Football League draft, to three one-year contracts.

With the signing of the 6-foot-3, 262-pounder from Chester, Pa., the Jets have 11 of their 17 draft choices under contract.

Expos to try again

NEW YORK (AP) — Give the Montreal Expos credit for this much—they know a good prospect when they see him.

The Expos liked Kalvin Adams enough to make him the No. 1 over-all selection in baseball's amateur free agent draft last January and even though they were unable to sign the Central Arizona Junior College third baseman-outfielder, that didn't change their opinion of the young man's ability.

So, when the Expos' turn came up in Wednesday's secondary draft of players previously selected but not signed, they came right back and picked Adams again.

Adams hit .415 in 83 games with seven homers and 77 runs batted in this season and was the second Central Arizona product to go in the first round of the secondary phase. Teammate Frank Ferroni, a left-handed pitcher, was the opening selection, chosen by the Minnesota Twins.

"They're both ready to go out and play," said Coach Ken Richardson. "They're in the same situation. Another year of baseball at this level won't really help them that much."

Adams was an all-around man for Central Arizona. Besides third base and the outfield, he even pitched and caught on occasion.

"He has outstanding potential as a hitter," said Richardson. "He has a big league bat."

Richardson said Adams had stayed in school after last January's draft because the Montreal contract offer wasn't good enough to lure him away. "But he wants to go and he's ready to play," the coach said.

Ferroni was drafted in January by the Cleveland Indians but didn't think he was ready for professional baseball at that point. He preferred a year of junior college experience and pitched 100 innings for Richardson's division champions, posting an 8-4 record and 2.79 earned run average in 16 games.

"He was our stopper," said Richardson. "He has velocity and a pretty good average major league curve ball."

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — With blue chips and glamors suffering the most selling pressure, stocks headed lower Thursday in moderate trading amid a number of investor uncertainties.

Many investors were waiting for the Federal Reserve Board to report on the nation's money supply at 4 p.m. EDT. The Fed recently tightened credit because of a 21.6 per cent surge in the money supply.

That tightening has resulted in the prime bank lending rate rising from 6¼ to 6¾ per cent over the past three weeks. It could go to 7 per cent soon. Citibank of New York, the trendsetter, passed on that option last week.

Wall Street was intrigued by a number of reports that indicated a compromise is about to be reached among OPEC nations over oil pricing. The reports indicated Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates would raise their prices in July and the other 11 OPEC members would forego a planned 5 per cent hike.

Against that background, the Dow Jones industrial average, a 9.98-point winner over the past two sessions, was off 4.49 points to 908.50 shortly before noon EDT. Late profit taking Wednesday trimmed the Dow's advance to 4.32 points from six.

Breadth figures reflected considerable investor uncertainty about the course of the market. Of the 1,601 issues crossing the tape, 560 declined, 521 advanced and 519 remained unchanged.

Volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 7,900,000 shares, down fom the 9,650,000 traded during the same period Wednesday.

Avis Corp. was the most active NYSE issue, up ⅜ to 20⅞. The trustee of 3.7 million Avis shares indicated it favors Norton Simon's recent $20.25-ashare tender offer over Fuqua Industries' $15.50-a-share bid. Fuqua indicated it may sweeten its offer.

Brunswick Corp. was the second most active issue, off ⅜ to 13⅛ following a block trade of 127,000 shares at 13¼.

Twentieth Century-Fox was the third most active issue, up ⅝ to 21½. Fox stock has been active lately because of a movie's success. Furthermore, there has been considerable speculation the firm might be taken over.

Low-priced Arlen Realty was off ⅝. The firm late Wednesday said it expected to report a $10 million fourth-quarter loss.

Tidewater Marine Service was ahead ¾. The company late Wednesday reported its fourth quarer net climbed to 90 cents a sare from 52 cents a year ago.

Prices were mixed in moderate trading of American Stock Exchange issues. Dome Petroleum was the most active issue, unchanged at 37. Total Petroleum followed, off ⅛ to 8¼. Kewanee Industries was third, up ¼ to 41.

Effect of Carter plan?

Inflation sure to hike utility bills

NEW YORK (AP) — Government and industry officials agree that inflation will push utility bills higher in the next few years. But they disagree on what additional effect President Carter's energy program may have.

"Over the long term, there should be lower rates than there would have otherwise been. But they will be higher than they are today," says Robert I. Hanfling of the Federal Energy Administration.

Paul Wagner, a spokesman for the industry-supported Edison Electric Institute, sees things differently. He predicts higher electic bills because of the Carter program.

"The net effect we see is that bills will go up about 5 per cent (annually) beyond what they would have been," he says, predicting the increase would be in addition to an anticipated 7 per cent-a-year inflation rate.

According to government statistics, the annual electric bill for an average household increased from $200 before the Arab oil embargo in 1973 to $290 last year.

The institute, a research organization supported by utility companies producing 78 per cent of the nation's power, feels Carter's proposals to push the industry into converting from oil and gas to coal or nuclear power in the near future will be costly.

Discounting the effect of inflation, the institute estimates it will cost $50 billion to covert to coal the 155,000 megawatts of existing and planned oil and gas-fired electric plants expected to be in service in 1985.

The institute says the cost of conversion and addition of environment-protecting equipment for all new coal plants would add $7 billion a year to the nation's electric bill by 1985, the target year in its study.

The trend away from oil and gas has dominated the industry in recent years, but industry spokesmen complain that Carter's plan, which begins levying penalty taxes on oil and gas in 1983, is trying to force the switch too quickly.

"The electric industry would face a huge financial burden to meet a total conversion from gas and oil use," says Paul Crawford, president of the institute.

In addition, the industry research group says Carter-endorsed environmental legislation, which has already begun to move through Congress, would require the addition of expensive and inefficient equipment that would add millions to the cost of building and operating new coal-fired plants.

FEA's Hanfling acknowledges industry would face increased capital costs to convert to coal and install environmental equipment, known as flue scrubbers, on all new plants. But he disagrees with the institute's cost projections.

Ex-guard backs death penalty

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — For 30 years Joe Ferretti kept the 18-hour death watch over condemned prisoners at San Quentin Prison. He strapped them into their seats in the apple green gas chamber, gave them a shot of whisky if they needed it and tried to say a few last words of comfort.

At his Petaluma home, Ferretti, now retired, keeps a book of snapshots of the 126 men and women he ushered to death.

The California Supreme Court struck down the state's death penalty law last December because it did not meet U.S. Supreme Court requirements. Recently, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. vetoed a new death penalty bill, and a bitter override battle is expected.

The San Quentin execution chamber has been idle since 1967, but officials say it is in working order and ready for immediate use if the death penalty is reinstated.

The last person to die in the twin-seated gas chamber was Aaron Charles Mitchell, 37. Brown, then a Los Angeles attorney, was among demonstrators who gathered at the prison to protest the execution.

Brown announced five months ago that he would veto any capital punishment bill that reached his desk. The bill by Sen. George Deukmejian reached him recently and he vetoed it within four hours.

"I'm for the death penalty 100 per cent," Ferretti said in a recent interview. "You've got to have it. Otherwise, anybody can kill anybody around here."

Ferretti, 73, was a San Quentin guard until he retired seven years ago. Baby sitting for the state's condemned prisoners "was just an extra job."

He said he initially got an additional $15 for the chore, but toward the end of his career he was receiving $75 per execution.

He said no condemned prisoners were given drugs to allay their fears of the gas chamber, but "we'd give 'em a shot of whisky or two if they wanted it.

JOE FERRETTI

"I got along with 'em fine," he said. "I asked one guy what I could do for him and he said, 'Go out and get me a blonde.'"

It was Ferretti who ushered Barbara Graham, the ex-hooker and extortion murderess, into the gas chamber in 1956. She was later portrayed by Susan Hayward in the movie, "I Want To Live."

Ferretti said as they reached the chamber door, a stay was announced.

"I had to take her back to the holding cell," he recalled. "Your stomach just starts to get nervous over something like that."

An hour later, the stay was lifted and Ferretti returned the condemned woman to the execution chamber.

"She asked to wear a black band over her eyes that second time," he said. "I got down on my knees and strapped her legs. Then I gave her a pat on the knee and said, 'Take it easy. Take a good whiff. It won't hurt,' and she said, 'How the hell do you know?'"

Art of Judo

The martial art of Judo was developed in Japan in the 1880s by Professor Jigaro Kano, who evolved the sport from the ancient Japanese method of unarmed combat, jujitsu.

Inflation to hike utility bills

Utilities should save because they will be paying lower fuel costs after they convert to coal, Hanfling said.

He also says they should realize some long-range savings on construction costs if the President's program is successful in lowering over-all energy consumption and reducing the number of expensive reserve generators needed to meet peak demand periods.

Hanfling and Wagner agree the wide-ranging presidential program is difficult to assess. Many of the proposals which Carter outlined in late April may see substantial changes or be killed in Congress.

Even in its proposed form, specific parts of the plan would affect various regions and individual customers differently.

The energy plan takes a broad approach to changes in the utility field. It includes a proposed system of tax penalties combined with tax credits, aimed at getting utilities which now use natural gas or oil to switch existing plants to coal or build new coal-fired or nuclear power plants.

Areas of the country where utilities are heavily dependent on gas or imported oil — notably the Southwest, California and much of the East Coast — will have to pay more to switch to other energy sources than regions which already have substantial numbers of coal-fired or nuclear powered plants. Government experts note that costs in those areas also would rise substantially if they continued their dependence on current fuels.

In addition, the President's plan calls for state public service commissions to make a number of adjustments in rate schedules including the elimination of so called declining block rates under which some large energy users pay less as they use more gas or electricity.

That and other rate changes make it difficult to determine just how actual costs of energy will eventually be split among residential, commercial and industrial customers.

But there are some voluntary programs that could have direct effects on residential customers who elect to participate. They could help cut electric and heating bills but initially they will require an investment.

Carter's home energy conservation program, for instance, would require utilities to make loans for home insulation and other projects and recommend contractors to do the work.

The consumer could write off a portion of the cost on his taxes. But the interest on the loan would be about the same as a bank loan and would be paid back in installments listed on the customer's regular bill, according to a spokesman for the FEA.

The government estimates that a "typical" family of four paying $670 yearly for heating could save $120 a year by insulating the attic.

A second voluntary participation program would require that lower rates be offered to consumers who elect to have electric service interrupted during times when power demands are the greatest.

Egypt's riots have spurred brighter economic outlook

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Bloody riots over price increases in January set off a chain of events that has resulted in a brighter economic outlook for Egyptians, according to experts here.

They say the riots sparked the first real effort to get Egypt's economy into shape, although they caution there is still a long way to go before the benefits filter down to the masses in the form of jobs and higher incomes.

The violence frightened Egypt's conservative and oilwealthy Arab backers into loosening their purse strings just as they were getting difficult about giving more aid.

International organizations that were urging risky reforms on purely economic grounds began taking political considerations into account and became less stringent.

A top team of Western-trained Egyptian economists also began amending an unsatisfactory foreign investment law that had failed to attract any major projects.

The experts gave this picture of the situation:

The improvement of Egypt's economy means more, for instance, than just making meat available seven days a week instead of three, or putting enough buses on the streets so passengers don't have to sit on the roof.

A prosperous Egypt will remove the main area of domestic criticism of President Anwar Sadat, a front-runner in the search for a Mideast settlement. Thus strengthened, he can deal with more confidence in talks with Israel and beyond that, during a period of peace if it ever comes.

It is mainly for these reasons that the United States this year has extended one billion dollars in aid and food assistance. About $750 million more are expected in the fiscal year starting next October. This continuing help makes Egypt the biggest recipient of U.S. economic aid in the world at present.

"Things are moving slowly, but they are moving," said one Western economist who last November gave Egypt one year in which to swim or sink. He said he still thinks the next six months are crucial in winning foreign confidence, but is less pessimistic.

The biggest problem bedevilling Egyptian economic managers has been $2.13 billion in short-term debts owed to commercial banks and foreign suppliers. About half of this was used to import food for a population of 38 million that is growing faster than its productivity or income.

With the average annual income only $280, the government had to spend $1.2 billion a year to subsidize basic foodstuffs, rents, public transport and even movie tickets.

In an effort to cut the drain, the new economic team of ministers under Deputy Premier Abdel Moneim el Kaissouny decided in January to reduce some of the subsidies by raising prices.

For example, a loaf of bread moved up from 3 cents to 4.5 cents, a pack of cigarettes rose from 78 cents to 84 cents, and flour increased from 21 cents to 36 cents a kilogram — 2.2 pounds. The riots broke out the day the hikes were announced and 79 persons were reported killed.

The short-term debts — out of a total Egyptian foreign debt of $12 billion — represented money which had to be repaid at high rates of interest over periods as short as three months. Last September Egypt was $600 million in arrerars and by March the figure was over $800 million, sources said.

"It was a headache that prevented the economic team from attending to other matters. It stifled the economy," Deputy Premier Kaissouny told reporters.

The riots provoked needed relief from the Arab oil states, concerned that the moderate Sadat might be replaced by radicals. Saudi Arabia, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates and Kuwait provided an emergency $1.5 billion on top of a previous $500 million. These funds were to have been largely spent in long-term, closely supervised development projects, but now the cash will be used to pay off creditors and will be reimbursed to the four countries over 11 years, with a five-year period of grace.

In addition, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia agreed not to withdraw $2 billion on deposit with Egyptian banks, thus in effect making the funds available to Egypt indefinitely.

The International Monetary Fund, meanwhile, compromised on some of the reforms it was requiring of Egypt and gave the government's efforts a stamp of credibility by lending it $145 million for this year.

Last month Egypt unveiled the main elements of a $20 billion, five-year plan to a group of Western countries and international organizations meeting in Paris.

"The idea was to show that Egypt is serious and to get some coordination on aid," Planning Minister Abdel Razzak Abdel Meguid said.

The consortium noted that Egypt still required huge amounts of aid, but added that if it was properly used "Egypt has good prospects of achieving its ambitious economic and social reforms." But it has to control its population problem, the consortium said.

To encourage investment, an ambiguous 1974 law was amended after the riots to allow foreign capital and profits to be repatriated at a realistic rate of about $1.40 to the Egyptian pound instead of the official rate of $2.56.

Another aspect of the economic reordering here is Egypt's efforts to reschedule its debts to the Soviet Union, which Kaissouny said amounted to $4 billion for military aid alone.

So far, the Russians have stalled on this.

Club sets program

The La Verne-San Dimas Junior Woman's Club will hear a talk by James Bruce Sievers, nationally acclaimed poet, when the group meets at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday in the Stanley Plummer Community Building, 245 E. Bonita Ave., San Dimas.

A highlight will be the presentation by Mr. Sievers of his poem, "America."

Further information about the club may be obtained by calling the membership chairman, Mrs. Chris Church, at 599-7804. The meeting is open to the public.

Float more

Fashion is giving us the romantic treatment this year with gossamer thin fabrics that float and flow like a drift of pastel petals. But those romantic fashions may flow less and cling more after they've been laundered, warns Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer information specialist.

To avoid the embarrassing hug of static-loaded skirts or dresses, she suggests using a fabric softener such as Rain Barrel, which not only cures the clings but adds a smooth-as-silk soft touch to everything from caftans to camisoles, shirts to sheets.

Joyce Brothers

Action spells trouble

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: After a divorce, this is my second marriage, my husband's first. The first year or so were fine, but now we have a problem — namely my daughter. She has just turned 15, has all the physical attributes, and can't seem to stay away from her stepfather. Though it embarrassed him at first, he accepted her cuddling and curling up in his lap and daughterly kisses as a cute sign of affection, I guess I did, too. Lately, though, he seems to be enjoying them more and I'm afraid that ssmething may happen. I'm also livid — with him for acting like an old fool and certainly with her for such outrageous behavior. Where do I turn? — K.W.

DEAR K.W.: The first thing you should turn is your daughter's bottom up and apply a few well-aimed swats. You don't need a Lolita at this point in your new marriage.

It's quite possible your daughter's carrying-on is a ploy to draw your attention to her rather than a play for your new husband. She may feel that you are not as close as you had been. Divorce can be unsettling enough to a child but the introduction of a new father or mother figure in the home also offers a traumatic time of adjustment.

Perhaps your husband isn't aware of just how close he is skirting danger — on more than one front. Aside from the trouble his "cuteness" with your daughter is causing at home, there are laws that take a dim view of men fooling around with underage girls.

Let your displeasure be known, loud and clear. If that brings no response then perhaps you should consider sending your daughter away to a boarding school or on a long visit to relatives. Either way, the two should not be left alone.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: The man I am planning to marry had one of those so-called civilized divorces. It's so darned civilized that he and his wife still travel in the same circles, we run into her and her date on many occasions, and he even insists that we sometimes double-date. Needless to say, the situation has me a nervous wreck. The woman is nice enough but I resent the intimacies they share that exclude me. Even more, I feel that I'm always being held up to comparison when we're with their mutual friends. I don't want to cause any rift between them, but I do feel that we should be developing our own life and friends. — M.G.

DEAR M.G.: Start developing, and get rid of your negative attitude.

Your man and his ex may have had a civilized divorce but it seems they're carrying it to rediculous lengths. It's nice that you can accept her and their friends, but you certainly shouldn't be expected to fit into their old routines.

Have a serious talk with this intended mate. Obviously their marriage is over but the involvement is not. If she is forcing these meetings, probably she hasn't gotten over her feelings and if he allows it to continue it's apparent that he shares similar views.

I don't know how long you've known this man but it not infrequently happens that a man will rebound quickly from divorce in an attempt to arouse the jealousy of his former wife. His love may be just as sincere for you, but he is using your relationship to demonstrate to her that the separation has not hurt his spirit or pride.

Try to plan more time with him alone without all those relics from his past. If he goes along, you're ahead. If he balks, it might be best to hold off on any marriage plans until he gets his priorities straight.

The Women's Service Board of Old Baldy Council, Boy Scouts of America, recently installed officers at a luncheon held at Red Hill Country Club in Cucamonga.

The new committee chairmen are: Mrs. Robert Burwell, ways and means; Mrs. Fred Moore, social; Mrs. Roger Wheeler, projects; and Mrs. Theo T. Nowak, historian. Mrs. Henry Busch was introduced as a new member.

FAMILY CIRCUS

First Aid practice

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — The questions are a little less inhibited when students learning mouth-to-mouth resuscitation are first graders.

An hour-long course called "First Aid for Little People" is conducted by Red Cross volunteers for first through third graders in Rochester schools.

A recent class at Harriet Bishop Elementary School was intrigued by "Resusi-Baby," a doll used in teaching artificial resuscitation.

Concerned questioners inquired whether there was any danger the doll might blow its nose during the resuscitation effort. Several of the children were not sure they should be getting so personal with a baby of undetermined sex.

One boy bargained, "First I gotta see another boy do it, then I'll try it."

Besides the essentials of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, the children learned how to dislodge an object from a baby's throat, identify characteristics of shock, how to apply pressure to stop bleeding and what to do in case of fire.

Swimsuit selection important

FORT COLLINS, Col (AP) — The use to which it will be put is important in choosing a swimsuit, says Mildred Crawford, assistant professor of textiles and clothing with the Colorado State University Cooperative Extension Service.

A one-piece maillot or tank suit made of a stretch fabric, for example, would be the best choice for the woman who plans to do a lot of swimming and diving, since it offers the greatest ease of movement and has little chance of slipping out of place.

On the other hand, she says, for persons who intend mainly to sunbathe, a swimsuit that exposes the maximum amount of skin area, such as a bikini, would be suitable, provided that it looked good on the figure.

She points out that fabrics from synthetic fibers, such as nylon, polyester or acrylic, dry much faster than those made from natural fibers, such as cotton or wool.

Sleep apnea

If your partner's snoring is unusually noisy and rasping, he or she may be one of the 50,000 Americans who suffer from sleep apnea. Sleep apnea is a potentially fatal sleep disorder, says an article in the June 28 Family Circle, that can result in high blood pressure, failure of the right side of the heart, highly abnormal heart rhythms, and even death. A failure to breathe spontaneously, sleep apnea can be "cured" in some cases by a tracheotomy.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN RABBITS AND HARES?"

MARK JOSEWSKI SHERIDAN, WY

A. HARES AND RABBITS ARE TWO DIFFERENT ANIMALS. A HARE IS LARGER THAN A RABBIT AND HAS LONGER EARS AND LONGER HIND LEGS.

Rabbits and hares look much alike, and are often mistaken for each other. But there are many differences between them.

The hare is larger than the rabbit and has longer ears. With its longer hind legs and bigger hind feet, it can outjump any rabbit.

Hares like to live alone, while two or three rabbit families may live together.

Rabbits and hares can be told apart most easily at birth. When hares are born, their eyes are open and their bodies are covered with fur, and they can hop about a few hours after birth.

Newborn rabbits are helpless for the first few days of life because they are born blind and hairless, and cannot move about.

Adding to the confusion between rabbits and hares is the fact that some are even misnamed. The jack rabbit, for example is not a rabbit. Neither is the snowshoe rabbit.

Both are actually hares, while the Belgian hare is really a rabbit!

Excitement and Danger in "The Deep"

Peter Benchley's best-selling novel, The Deep, like his enormously popular book, Jaws, has come to the screen as a thrilling underwater epic. In brief, the story revolves around a honeymooning couple who dive in the reefs of Bermuda looking for the wreck of a sunken ship. What they find lures them into a terrifying struggle for survival. None of the actors — Nick Nolte, Robert Shaw, Jacqueline Bisset, Lou Gossett — had ever attempted an underwater dive. Nearly 11,000 practice attempts made them professionals. The set of The Deep was the largest ever constructed underwater for a film. Jacqueline Bisset was born in England and began her career as a model. She is considered one of the most beautiful women in films today. Nick Nolte gained fame in the successful Rich Man, Poor Man TV series. He lives far from the deep on a five-acre estate and enjoys his collection of old cars, dogs and horses.
